Circumfession:

Circumfession Jacques Derrida, In Search of Radical Theology John D. Caputo, 2020-10-06 This sparkling collection of essays invites readers to join a seasoned scholar on his journey to catch radical theology in action both in the Church and our culture at large Capturing a career's worth of thought and erudition this rich volume treats readers to creative thought careful argumentation and sophisticated analysis transmitted through the lucid accessible prose that has earned the author a wide readership of academics and non academics alike In tackling radical theology John D Caputo has in mind the deeper stream that courses its way through various historical and confessional theologies upon which these theologies draw even while it disturbs them from within They are well served by this disturbance because it keeps them on their toes When we read about professional theologians losing their jobs in confessional institutions the chances are that by earnestly digging into what is going on in their tradition they have hit upon radical theological rock Unlike modernist dismissals of religion radical theology does not debunk but re-invents the theological tradition Radical theology Caputo says is a double deconstruction of supernatural theology on the one hand and of transcendental reason on the other and therefore of the settled distinctions between the religious and the secular Caputo also addresses the challenge for radical theology to earn a spot in the curriculum given that the radical makes it suspect among the confessional seminaries while the theology renders it suspect among university seminars Journeying from the academy to contemporary American culture In Search of Radical Theology includes a captivating presentation of radical political theology for the time of Trump This utterly unique volume not only brings readers on an enlightening tour of Caputo's thought but also invites us to accompany the author as he travels into intriguing new territories Morality, Violence, and Ritual Circumcision Na'ama Carlin, 2022-11-30 This book uses the Jewish ritual of circumcision to consider how violent acts are embedded within entrenched moral discourses and offers a new perspective for thinking about violence Intervening in contemporary debates on the Jewish ritual of circumcision it departs from both the ordinary secular defences of circumcision for medical reasons and the criticisms that consider it an unethical violation of bodies that cannot consent An examination of the intersection of violence and morality this book rejects the binary logic on which popular debates on circumcision hinge arguing that in some instances violence can be a productive experience and can thus be considered beyond good and bad Engaging with the works of Jacques Derrida the author puts forward a framework of violence of ontology which is characterised as a violence that is related to existence the violence of being which resists definition through binary oppositions In so doing the author contends that circumcision is in fact a form of generative violence that is leveraged for cultural purposes and inherent in the making of bodies As such this volume offers a compelling framework that investigates the relationship between bodies identities ethics and violence and will therefore appeal to scholars of sociology social theory and religion with interests in the sociology of the body ritual and cultural studies Augustine and Postmodernism John D. Caputo, Michael J. Scanlon, 2005-03-10 At the heart of the current surge of interest in religion among contemporary Continental philosophers stands Augustine's Confessions. With Derrida's Circumfession constantly in the background, this volume takes up the provocative readings of Augustine by Heidegger, Lyotard, Arendt, and Ricoeur. Derrida himself presides over and comments on essays by major Continental philosophers and internationally recognized Augustine scholars. While studies on and about Augustine as a philosopher abound, none approach his work from such a uniquely postmodern point of view showing both the continuing relevance of Augustine and the religious resonances within postmodernism. Posed at the intersection of philosophy, theology, and religious studies, this book will be of interest to scholars and students of Augustine as well as those interested in the invigorating discussion between philosophy, religion, and postmodernism. Contributors include Geoffrey Bennington, Philippe Capelle, John D. Caputo, Elizabeth A. Clark, Hent de Vries, Jacques Derrida, Jean Bethke Elshtain, Richard Kearney, Catherine Malabou, James O'Donnell, Michael J. Scanlon, and Mark Vessey. Haunted Words, Haunted Selves Colby Dickinson, 2024-03-22 We are all haunted by things we fear repress and those things of which we have no conscious knowledge. We are thus haunted by a variety of ghosts in our lives so that at times we might notice those things we have ignored and so too allow the repressed elements of our world a chance to speak more directly to us. Being honest with ourselves means listening better to what haunts us and to wrestle with our own ghosts as humans have often claimed throughout history to wrestle with God. Recognizing how we are ceaselessly haunted by that which threatens to undo our representations of ourselves is what draws together a series of reflections in this book on how we will never be able to rid ourselves of such hauntings. By examining a series of hauntings, this study looks at what continues to haunt the field of continental philosophy: the various things that haunt our sovereign construction of ourselves, the church, our words, and language in general, and even how our texts are endlessly haunted by the autobiographical I. We are often taught to exclude from our writings.

Difference in Philosophy of Religion Philip Goodchild, 2017-11-01 This title was first published in 2003. Can difference be subordinated to identity, simplicity, or diversity? Or does it make a difference to the entire way in which we think? This book challenges the dominant agenda in the discipline of philosophy of religion by exploring issues of difference that have hitherto been obscured. It draws together some of the most innovative work in philosophical thinking about religion by some of the most creative and radical new thinkers in the field. Moving beyond debates between believers and skeptics, the contributors draw on critical theory to address differences in rationality, gender, tradition, culture, and politics, showing how it is possible to think differently. Assumptions about rational neutrality, belief, tradition, experience, and identity that undergird the rational exploration of classical theism are deconstructed. Instead, it becomes important to explore a critical ethical reasoning, religious performance, internal religious tensions, location in culture, and a relation to exteriority as the groundwork for a future philosophy of religion.

Archival Afterlives Laura Hughes, 2023-11-15 A capacious analysis of a legendary intellectual friendship and the material legacies it left behind. Over the course of their decades-long friendship, H

In Archival Afterlives Cixous and Jacques Derrida assembled overlapping archives of written experiments and exchanges that document a shared interest in their literary afterlives. In this incisive account, Laura Hughes shows how pushing against the limits of writing and of life itself means not only imagining but manifesting a community of future readers. Archival Afterlives Cixous, Derrida, and the Matter of Friendship examines the embodied nature of literary creation, taking letters, fragments, notes, and other ephemera as objects of critical analysis and care. Combining close readings of key texts and previously unexamined archival materials, Hughes traces critical connections between Cixous and Derrida, between the theoretical and the autobiographical, and between life, writing, and its limits. In putting deconstruction into dialogue with new material analyses and archive studies, Archival Afterlives positions this historical and intellectual relationship as a lens through which to reexamine the legacy of critical theory itself. God, the Gift, and Postmodernism John D. Caputo, Michael J.

Scanlon, 1999. At a time when the themes and motifs of French phenomenology have moved in an increasingly religious direction, God, the Gift, and Postmodernism raises with new energy Tertullian's ancient question: What has Athens to do with Jerusalem? Jacques Derrida, the father of deconstruction, engages here with theologian Jean-Luc Marion on the questions of mystical theology and the gift. Is the gift a matter of the overflowing excess of givenness, as Marion argues, or is it precisely what is never given, as Derrida maintains? Is mystical theology ultimately a higher way of affirming presence, or is it a path beyond the metaphysics of presence? Probing essays by the leading scholars in the field of postmodernism and religion spell out the terms of these important contemporary debates and related issues in clear, exciting, and timely form. The Uncanny Nicholas Royle, 2003. This study is of the uncanny, an important concept for contemporary thinking and debate across a range of disciplines and discourses, including literature, film, architecture, cultural studies, philosophy, psychoanalysis, and queer theory. Much of this importance can be traced back to Freud's essay of 1919, "The Uncanny" (Das Unheimliche). Where he was perhaps the first to foreground the distinctive nature of the uncanny as a feeling of something not simply weird or mysterious but more specifically as something strangely familiar. As a concept and a feeling, however, the uncanny has a complex history going back to at least the Enlightenment. Royle offers a detailed historical account of the emergence of the uncanny, together with a series of close readings of different aspects of the topic. Following a major introductory historical and critical overview, there are chapters on the death drive, déjà vu, silence, solitude, and darkness, the fear of being buried alive, doubles, ghosts, cannibalism, telepathy, and madness, as well as more applied readings concerned for
