Comparing Financial Systems Franklin Allen, Douglas Gale, 2000 Why do different countries have such different financial systems Is one system better than the other This text argues that the view that market based systems are best is simplistic and suggests that a more nuanced approach is necessary Comparing Financial Systems Sylvain Champonnois, 2006

Comparing Financial Systems Irena Grosfeld, 1994 The Oxford Handbook of Comparative Institutional Analysis Glenn Morgan, John Campbell, Colin Crouch, Ove Kaj Pedersen, Richard Whitley, 2010-04-08 It is increasingly accepted that institutions matter for economic organization and outcomes The last decade has seen significant expansion in research examining how institutional contexts affect the nature and behaviour of firms the operation of markets and economic outcomes Yet institutions conceal a multitude of issues and perspectives Much of this research has been comparative and followed different models such as varieties of capitalism national business systems and social systems of production This Handbook explores these issues perspectives and models with the leading scholars in the area contributing chapters to provide a central reference point for academics scholars and students Comparative Financial Systems Paul F. Financial Stability Policy in the Euro Zone Gundbert Scherf, 2013-06-17 Due to the lack of political salience that financial stability policy enjoys in tranquil economic times this policy field lends itself particularly well to capture the more so the more important the role of banks is in the financial system Gundbert Scherf's research focuses on this nexus between integrated banking supranational monetary policy and national banking regulation He finds that national level differences in financial systems and related institutions explain and drive variation in regulatory financial stability policy across countries

Bank-based and Market-based Financial Systems Asl? Demirgüç-Kunt, Ross Levine, 1999 Comparing China's Financial System Franklin Allen, 2011 We compare China's financial system to those of the developed countries in particular the US system dominated by financial markets and the German system dominated by the banking sector We examine financial systems properties including risk sharing information provision funding new and mature industries financial crisis corporate governance and the relation between the financial and legal systems and economic growth We find that there are many fundamental differences between China's financial system and the US system and simply adopting the US system is not optimal Understanding the German system and reform China's banking system should be as important as developing US style financial markets Our findings also suggest that China differs from most countries studied in the law finance and growth and comparative financial systems literature Despite its poor legal and financial systems it has the largest and one of the fastest growing economies in the world We find that there are effective informal financing channels and governance mechanisms to support the growth of various firms in the economy Therefore it may be best for China to develop its existing financial system and to ensure that the informal financing channels and governance mechanisms continue to work along with the development of the legal and financial systems National Financial Systems, Globalization, and Investment Marc
