

Philosophy of Counselling

If we want to discuss the philosophy of counselling as such, we have to go beyond the profession of counsellor, exploit the helping nature of human being starting in childhood. We have to expand outside the borders of humanity to all animal kingdom, where mother helps injured or scared young, to get over the trouble or deal with stress of the moment or situation, as these happened to everyone. Some are just short shocks from momentary exposure and some are longer lasting from distress developed into disorder.

In childhood, when we experience stressful situation, ideally we receive help from parents or other significant person in form of explanation and calming talk, which compare to para-professional or non-licensed counsellor. One might say that help of parent or other significant person in our life is the first counselling experience. As we grow into adulthood, we grow through experiences of more professional counselling. In school, beside a teacher or instructor, it might be para-professional or professional counsellor or psychiatrist, as it happens at work by manager and work counsellor or outside of work in medical environment. In cases of more serious need of help, we visit counselling agency or mental institution.

The necessity of help is quite evident in the cases of children and adults whom had no opportunity of getting help in the time of need and at later adulthood, in most, they are exhibiting strong signs of stress turning into psychological disorder. Most adults in counselling care shows, after a few sessions of counselling, stressors, which lead to childhood negligence or later, untreated mental stressors.

We would not be exploring philosophy of counselling, if we did not explore more closely the professional helpers and their psychological reasons for taking the burden of the profession.

(CACREP) What is professional counseling? Counseling is a professional relationship that empowers diverse individuals, families, and groups to accomplish mental health, wellness, education, and career goals.

People have many different reasons for deciding they want to become a counselor. Some people choose this career because they once had a good experience with a counselor during a difficult time in their own life and they want to "pay it forward." Another person may have done some volunteer work at a crisis hotline and realized that they enjoyed both the challenges and joys of working with clients facing difficult times. Yet another person may have been told that they are a good listener and they ought to consider working as a mental health professional.

Some individuals simply are looking for satisfying their ego, to make impact, or to have power and control over others.

"I have always desired to become a counselor since I was five years old. I have always loved helping people a wonderful lady in our community who worked in the counseling field was instrumental in encouraging me to follow my dreams." -Barbara Meeken

(CACREP) Whatever the reasons, individuals that choose to seek a career in counseling usually have one thing in common - a desire to help people work through life's challenges and

Counseling Philosophy Examples:

Philosophy's Role in Counseling and Psychotherapy Peter Raabe, 2013-11-26 In Philosophy's Role in Counseling and Psychotherapy Peter Raabe argues that philosophy is an effective method in treating mental illness. Calling for a paradigm shift away from the standard belief that the brain and mind are identical, Raabe argues that so-called mental illnesses such as depression and schizophrenia are not the actual causes of psychological misery. Instead, they are just labels for symptoms. For example, the word depression is merely a label attached to a collection of symptoms such as sadness, hopelessness, and low self-esteem. Raabe posits that distressing or painful life events can cause symptoms that are often clinically labeled as the mental illness of depression. The suffering brought on by painful life events can often be alleviated with helpful discussions and without resorting to medications. Because philosophy is the foremost form of discussion, it means that the suffering that is labeled mental illness can be treated and even cured with philosophy. Raabe ultimately concludes that philosophy is beneficial in three ways: it can prevent the onset of a so-called mental illness in the person who studies it; it can be used to help individuals suffering from the distress that is labeled mental illness; and it will enhance the competence of the counselor or therapist who practices it.

The School Counselor's Book of Lists Dorothy J. Blum, Ed.D., Tamara E. Davis, Ed.D., 2010-05-20 An updated edition of an essential go-to resource for school counselors. Since 1997, The School Counselor's Book of Lists has offered counselors a wealth of relevant and much-needed information written in concise and user-friendly language. A quick easy guide for finding information on almost any topic pertinent to school counselors, the book covers everything from writing student assessments and dealing with school crises to setting budgets and running effective meetings. In order to address the transformed role of school counselors, the contents of this comprehensive second edition map to the American School Counselor Association's National Model for Counseling Programs. Includes hundreds of helpful lists offering guidelines, strategies, trends, and resources. Officially endorsed by the American School Counselor Association (ASCA). The first edition was a bestselling title for school counselors. Addresses the pressing issues faced by today's school counselors. This revised edition is appropriate for school counseling graduate programs as well as to practitioners in the K-12 field.

Case Conceptualization and Effective Interventions Lynn Zubernis, Matthew Snyder, 2015-04-10 With fully integrated DSM 5 criteria and current CACREP standards, Case Conceptualization and Effective Interventions by Lynn Zubernis and Matthew Snyder examines case conceptualization and effective treatments across the most common disorders encountered in counseling. The comprehensive approach helps readers develop their professional identities as well as their case conceptualization and intervention skills. Each chapter blends current theory and research with case illustrations and guided practice exercises to anchor the material in real world application. Using an innovative new Temporal Contextual T-C Model, the book provides an easy to apply and practical framework for developing accurate and effective case conceptualizations and treatment plans. Case Conceptualization and Effective Interventions is part of the SAGE Counseling and Professional Identity Series which targets specific competencies identified by CACREP Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Programs The Contemporary Relational Supervisor 2nd edition Robert E. Lee, Thorana S. Nelson, 2021-08-11 The Contemporary Relational Supervisor 2nd edition is an empirically based academically sophisticated and learner friendly text on the cutting edge of couple and family therapy supervision. This extensively revised second edition provides emerging supervisors with the conceptual and pragmatic tools to engage a new wave of therapists helping them move forward together into a world of highly systemic empirically derived relational developmental and integrative supervision and clinical practice. The authors discuss major supervision models and approaches evaluation ethical and legal issues and therapist development. They present methods that help tailor and extend supervision practices to meet the clinical institutional economic and cultural realities that CFT therapists navigate. Filled with discussions and exercises to engage readers throughout as well as updates surrounding telehealth and social justice this practical text helps emerging therapists feel more grounded in their knowledge and develop their own personal voice. The book is intended for developing and experienced clinicians and supervisors intent on acquiring up to date and forward looking systemic CFT supervisory mastery.

Essays on Philosophical Counseling Ran Lahav, Maria da Venza Tillmanns, 1995 In the first book written in English on this growing field of applied philosophy Essays on Philosophical Counseling is a collection of 14 articles by leading philosophical counselors from five countries. The book presents the reader with the major approaches to philosophical counseling by combining theoretical discussions with a large number of case studies. Divided into three parts Essays on Philosophical Counseling first discusses the theoretical and historical background of philosophical counseling then deals with the relationship between philosophical counseling and psychotherapy and last focuses on specific types of problems and predicaments and how they are addressed philosophically.
