Are you aware that the perception of time differs dramatically across the globe? While the Americans tend to think about time in a 5-minute increment, Middle Easterners do so in 15-minute increments, implying that an American's five-minute siesta and a Middle Easterner's fifteen-minute siesta are actually experienced as the same length of time?

Can you pretend just for a second that time is different from what it is on the actual clock? Remarkably speaking, yes. It is almost as possible as the imposition of any other legislation. Not realistic? On the 1st of May 2016, due to severe drought and water levels in Venezuela's dams running low, raising the threat of a potential power crisis, the clocks in Venezuela was turned forward 30 minutes. Venezuelan Standard Time (VET), to prevent a blackout the country has decided to change its time zone! Interestingly, this is not a one of its kind time alteration. Egyptians had to change their clocks, after their cabinet decided that Daylight Saving Time (DST) will not be used during Ramadan, and so the clocks are pushed back to shorten the days and increase the night, when fasting is not required.

Ramadan has been a delightful month, least for the shorter working hours. Happy Eid and welcome back to longer hours of productivity.

Court Uncourt brings to you a fathomless read into legal developments of technology and the latest trends of our time! Wishing you a delightful reading experience, CourtUncourt is available on iOS and Google Play. Happy Reading!
