Ishmael Beah was born in Sierra Leone, a country in Africa. He is a New York Times best-selling author of A Long Way Gone: Memoirs of a Boy Soldier and Radiance of Tomorrow: A Novel.

Skill Focus:

In this lesson, you'll practice analyzing how an author develops their point of view. This means determining what the author thinks and believes about a person or situation. It also includes examining how specific sections of the text develop the author's point of view (e.g. through actions, dialogue, or thoughts). As you read, take notes on the author's point of view about sharing his identity.

The narrator says he came to the U.S. with a passport, so he is an immigrant.

He did not come to the U.S. with a lot.

He was adopted when he was older and could fly on a plane alone.

(1) I came to New York City in 1998. I was seventeen.

I entered the United States with just a passport in my hand, because somehow the baggage that I'd checked when I boarded the flight from Ivory Coast (which was tattered in ways unimaginable) didn't make it.

I stood there at the luggage rack watching all these huge bags go by, and mine didn't come. This bag held all my possessions at this point: two pairs of pants and two shirts — one long-sleeved and one short. So I just started laughing, and I didn't even bother going to the lost-luggage section to claim it.

I just walked right out to meet my new adoptive mother, who was standing there with a beaming smile, waiting for me. And I explained to her what had happened, and we laughed some more.

(3) We left and went into Manhattan, and that evening we went to Kiku's. (After we had had Chinese food and a fortune cookie that said, "You're about to have new clothes.")

1. What is the author's point of view about sharing his background? ELA
 - A. He believes that sometimes it's fun to pretend to be a different person.
 - B. He believes that a person should be careful not to share anything with people.
 - C. He believes that in order to live the life he wants, he needs to hide certain things from others.
 - D. He believes that in order to live the life he wants, he should share his background with everyone.
