Chetwynd Calverley by William Harrison Ainsworth.

William Harrison Ainsworth,2019-01-13 George Ade February 9 1866 May 16 1944 was an American writer newspaper columnist and playwright. George Ade was born in Kentland Indiana one of seven children raised by John and Adaline Bush Ade. While attending Purdue University he became a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity. He also met and started a lifelong friendship with fellow cartoonist and Sigma Chi brother John T McCutcheon and worked as a reporter for the Lafayette Call. He graduated in 1887. In 1890 Ade joined the Chicago Morning News which later became the Chicago Record where McCutcheon was working. He wrote the column Stories of the Streets and of the Town. In the column which McCutcheon illustrated George Ade illustrated Chicago life. It featured characters like Artie an office boy, Doc Horne a gentlemanly liar and Pink Marsh a black shoeshine boy. Ade's well known fables in slang also made their first appearance in this popular column. Ade's literary reputation rests upon his achievements as a great humorist of American character during an important era in American history, the first large wave of migration from the countryside to burgeoning cities like Chicago where in fact Ade produced his best fiction. He was a practicing realist during the Age of William Dean Howells and a local colorist of Chicago and the Midwest. His work constitutes a vast comedy of Midwestern manners and indeed a comedy of late 19th century American manners. In 1915 Sir Walter Raleigh Oxford professor and man of letters while on a lecture tour in America called George Ade the greatest living American writer.

Chetwynd Calverley : a Tale (1877). By: William

Harrison Ainsworth William Harrison Ainsworth,2017-04-30 William Harrison Ainsworth 4 February 1805 3 January 1882 was an English historical novelist born at King Street in Manchester. He trained as a lawyer but the legal profession held no attraction for him. While completing his legal studies in London he met the publisher John Ebers at that time manager of the King's Theatre Haymarket. Ebers introduced Ainsworth to literary and dramatic circles and to his daughter who became Ainsworth's wife. Ainsworth briefly tried the publishing business but soon gave it up and devoted himself to journalism and literature. His first success as a writer came with Rookwood in 1834 which features Dick Turpin as its leading character. A stream of 39 novels followed, the last of which appeared in 1881. Ainsworth died in Reigate on 3 January 1882. EARLY LIFE Ainsworth was born on 4 February 1805 in the family house at 21 King Street Manchester to Thomas Ainsworth a prominent Manchester lawyer and Ann Harrison Ainsworth the daughter of the Rev Ralph Harrison the Unitarian minister at Manchester Cross Street Chapel. On 4 October 1806 Ainsworth's brother Thomas Gilbert Ainsworth was born. Although the family home was eventually destroyed it was a three storey Georgian home in a well to do community. The area influenced

Ainsworth with its historical and romantic atmosphere which existed until the community was later replaced by commercial buildings. Besides the community Ainsworth read romantic works as a child and enjoyed stories dealing with either adventure or supernatural themes. Of these Dick Turpin was a favourite of Ainsworth. During his childhood he adopted Jacobean ideas and held Tory ideas in addition to his Jacobite sympathies even though his community was strict Whig and Nonconformist. During this time Ainsworth began to write prolifically. The Ainsworth family moved to Smedly Lane north of Manchester in Cheetham Hill during 1811. They kept the old residence in addition to the new but resided in the new home most of the time. The surrounding hilly country was covered in woods which allowed Ainsworth and his brother to act out various stories. When not playing Ainsworth was tutored by his uncle William Harrison. In March 1817 he was enrolled at Manchester Grammar School which was described in his novel Mervyn Clitheroe. The work emphasised that his classical education was of good quality but was reinforced with strict discipline and corporal punishment. Ainsworth was a strong student and was popular among his fellow students. His school days were mixed his time within the school and with his family was calm even though there were struggles within the Manchester community the Peterloo Massacre taking place in 1819. Ainsworth was connected to the event because his uncles joined in protest at the incident but Ainsworth was able to avoid most of the political after effects. During the time he was able to pursue his own literary interests and even created his own little theatre within the family home at King Street. Along with his friends and brother he created and acted in many plays throughout 1820. During 1820 Ainsworth began to publish many of his works under the name Thomas Hall. The first work a play called The Rivals was published on 5 March 1821 in Arliss's Pocket Magazine. Throughout 1821 the magazine printed seventeen other works of Ainsworth's under the names Thomas Hall H A or W A. The genre and forms of the work greatly varied with one being a claim to have found plays of a 17th century playwright William Aynsworth which ended up being his own works. This trick was later exposed. In December 1821 Ainsworth submitted his play Venice or the Fall of the Foscari to The Edinburgh Magazine.
