18 - EFFECTIVENESS OF THE CANCER SYMPTOM MANAGEMENT SYSTEM: SYMPTOM MANAGEMENT IMPROVES YOUR LIFE (SMILE): A RANDOMIZED CONTROLLED TRIAL.

, 2017 Introduction Electronic systems can facilitate symptom monitoring and management. The purpose of this study was to evaluate the effect of the Cancer Symptom Management System Symptom Management Improves your Life SMILE which combined electronic symptom management and evidence based patient education for cancer symptom management. Methods A nonblinded randomized controlled trial was conducted. Cancer patients starting adjuvant or palliative chemotherapy CTx were randomized to control symptom monitoring experimental 1 Exp 1 symptom monitoring report or experimental 2 Exp 2 symptom monitoring report ONS PEP guided evidence based symptom management education groups in a 1:2:2 ratio N=249. Additional benefit of symptom management education to continuous symptom monitoring was analyzed by comparing the Exp 1 and Exp 2 groups utilizing Mann Whitney U test and generalized estimating equations n=199. Results Fatigue and sleep disturbance changes were different between Exp 1 and Exp 2 groups among patients receiving adjuvant CTx p=0.42 and p=0.08. Fatigue gradually decreased after a peak at the 1st CTx cycle in Exp 2 whereas Exp 1 experienced increasing fatigue until the 3rd CTx cycle A gradual decrease in sleep disturbance was observed in Exp 2 after the 2nd CTx cycle whereas Exp 1 experienced a steady increase in the symptom Participants were willing to monitor symptoms using the Cancer Symptom Management System Evidence based symptom management education was considered as easy to understand and helpful Conclusions The Cancer Symptom Management System SMILE incorporating evidence based symptom management education effectively managed fatigue and sleep disturbance after adjuvant CTx Integrating electronic symptom management system and evidence based symptom management education is recommended to better manage fatigue and sleep disturbance among patients receiving adjuvant CTx

Cancer Breanne Lechner,Ronald Chow,Natalie Pulenzas,Marko Popovic,Na Zhang,Edward Chow,Xiaojing Zhang,Joav Merrick,2015-12 Many cancer patients experience a variety of distressing symptoms adversely affecting their functional status and quality of life QOL Subjective symptoms such as pain fatigue and depression are common among cancer patients with approximately 33 55% of cancer patients experiencing pain during the course of their illness Previous literature commonly examined a single symptom and its effect on patients functional status and QOL but patients often experience multiple symptoms simultaneously Since individual symptoms are often associated with decreased QOL the assumption that symptom clusters might have a greater effect on QOL is logical The coexistence of symptoms provides an insight into the importance of assessing clusters of symptoms rather than focusing on individual symptoms Although the focus of single symptoms has advanced the understanding of those particular symptoms it may not be as helpful to health care professionals in guiding practice when patients present several concurrent symptoms It is important for clinicians to address and ultimately treat all concurrent symptoms Symptom cluster research will help our understanding and treatment of multiple symptoms
