Computer Control of Fermentation Processes Daniel R. Omstead, 1989-10-31 The purpose of this volume is to describe the components assembly and implementation of computer based process control systems Presented in two sections it illustrates how such systems have been used to monitor and control industrial fermentation processes as a means to improve our understanding of product biosynthesis This book covers the fields of indirect parameter estimation and fermentation specific control algorithms It also includes chapters which describe system architecture and process application process control on line liquid sampling and computer system architecture This is an ideal source for anyone involved with and Control of Biotechnological Processes N. M. Fish, 2012-12-06 Richard Fox Chairman Scientific Programme Committee Between 25th and 29th September 1988 243 people who either apply or research the use of computers in fermentation gathered together at Robinson College Cambridge UK They came from 30 countries The conference brought together two traditions Firstly it continued the series on Computer Applications in Fermentation Technology ICCAFT inaugurated by Henri Blanchere in Dijon in 1973 and carried forward in Philadelphia and Manchester Secondly it brought the expertise of the many members of the International Federation of Automatic Control IFAC who focused their attention on biotechnology at Noordwijkerhout in the Netherlands in December 1985 I am happy to say that the tradition carries on and a successor meeting will hopefully take place in the USA in 1991 If you find these proceedings useful or stimulating then we hope to see you there We set out to make ICCAFT4 a close knit friendly conference We housed all who cared to in Robinson College itself and organised no parallel sessions Because we the organisers experience difficulty with the jargon of our colleagues from other disciplines we asked Bruce Beck to present a breakfast tutorial on modern control and modelling techniques and we set up informal panel discussions after dinner on two evenings Neville Fish chaired a forum on the microbiological principles behind models while Professors Derek Linkens and Ron Leigh led a discussion on expert systems in control Computer Control of Fermentation Processes by AI Technologies Toshiomi Yoshida, 1994 The concept of physiological state control of bioreactor systems is introduced along with extensive discussion on the characteristics of bioreactor control systems A software system for the diagnosis of the physiological situation through the inference procedure utilizing a fuzzy set approach and a physiological state control system in a hierarchy structure are demonstrated The control system was applied on the fed batch culture for phenylalanine production by a recombinant Escherichia coli The investigation on the detection and control of physiological state variability in the continuous culture of the organisms is also demonstrated Author's abstract

Computers in Fermentation Technology M. E. Bushell, 1988 This volume in the Progress in Industrial Microbiology series describes many aspects of the use of computers in fermentation technology The introduction of advanced computer hardware for fermentation control predated to some extent the availability of suitable control software As recently as five years ago it was not uncommon for major fermentation plants to have installed state of the art computing facilities which were subsequently used as little more than intelligent recording systems Fermentation technology has now caught up with the other manufacturing sciences in the implementation of advanced computing methodology but the problems are more demanding due to biological variability a phenomenon which characterises all processes involving cell cultures In this volume two approaches to the problem are described one involving optimisation statistics in fermentation process design and the other concentrating on the use of models for control purposes describing the use of the Kalman Filter for real time process optimisation and control The first chapter introduces the opportunities made possible by the implementation of computer systems
