CSS Rules

Label the components of the rule (Pages 101-102)

This slide teaches you about the rule diagram above. It's important that you understand the parts of the rule.

[selector]
The selector is the part of the rule that identifies the element to be styled.

[property]
The property is the part of the rule that identifies the style to be applied.

[value]
The value is the part of the rule that identifies the specific style to be applied.

[rule]
The rule is the entire declaration, including the selector, property, and value.

Remember, the selector identifies the element to be styled, the property identifies the style to be applied, and the value identifies the specific style to be applied.

Now it's your turn to label the components of the rule.
