Caribbean Paleodemography L. Antonio Curet, 2005-06-05 A high significant discussion of Caribbean archaeology and a fascinating introduction to paleodemography According to the European chronicles at the time of contact the Greater Antilles were inhabited by the Taino or Arawak Indians who were organized in hierarchical societies Since its inception Caribbean archaeology has used population as an important variable in explaining many social political and economic processes such as migration changes in subsistence systems and the development of institutionalized social stratification In Caribbean Paleodemography L Antonio Curet argues that population has been used casually by Caribbean archaeologists and proposes more rigorous and promising ways in which demographic factors can be incorporated in our modeling of past human behavior He analyzes a number of demographic issues in island archaeology at various levels of analysis including inter and intra island migration carrying capacity population structures variables in prehistory cultural changes and the relationship with material culture and social development With this work Curet brings together the diverse theories on Greater Antilles island populations and the social and political forces governing their growth and migration

Tibes L. Antonio Curet, Lisa M. Stringer, 2010 The prehistoric civic ceremonial center of Tibes is located on the southern coast of Puerto Rico just north of the modern coastal city of Ponce Protected on two sides by a river and on the other two sides by hills this approximately 10 5 acre site remains as fertile and productive today as when first occupied over 2 000 years ago Such a rich region would have been a choice location for native peoples because of the diversity in all resources from land air and sea and also symbolically crucial as a liminal space within the landscape It may have been regarded as a space charged with numen or cosmic energy where different parts of the cosmos natural vs supernatural or world of the living vs world of the dead overlap Archaeological evidence reveals a long occupation about 1 000 years possibly followed by an extensive period of sporadic ceremonial use after the site itself was practically abandoned In this volume nineteen Caribbeanists examine the geophysical perspectives Rethinking Puerto Rican Precolonial History Reniel Rodríguez Ramos,2010-07-19 Focuses on the successive indigenous cultures of Puerto Rico prior to 1493 The history of Puerto Rico has usually been envisioned as a sequence of colonizations various indigenous peoples from Archaic through Ta no were successively invaded assimilated or eliminated followed by the Spanish entrada which was then modified by African traditions and since 1898 by the United States The truth is more complex but in many ways Puerto Rico remains one of the last colonies in the world This volume focuses on the successive indigenous cultures of Puerto Rico prior to 1493 Traditional studies of the cultures of indigenous peoples of the Caribbean have centered on ceramic studies based on the archaeological model developed by Irving Rouse which has guided Caribbean archaeology for decades Rodríguez Ramos departs from this methodology by implementing lithics as the primary unit for tracing the origins and developments of the indigenous peoples of Puerto Rico Analyzing the technological styles involved in the production of stone artifacts in the island through time as well as the evaluation of an inventory of more than 500 radiocarbon dates recovered since Rouse's model emerged the author presents a truly innovative study revealing alternative perspectives on Puerto Rico's pre Columbian culture historical sequence By applying a multiscalar design he not only not only provides an analysis of the plural ways in which the precolonial peoples of the island interacted and negotiated their identities but also shows how the cultural landscapes of Puerto Rico the Antilles and the Greater Caribbean shaped and were shaped by mutually constituting processes through time

Ancient Borinquen Peter E. Siegel,2005-09-07 Publisher description The People of Puerto Rico Julian Haynes Steward,1956 A Social Science Research Center study College of Social Sciences University of Puerto Rico Bibliography p 516 526 The Caribbean Before Columbus William F.

Keegan,Corinne L. Hofman,2017-01 The Caribbean before Columbus is a new synthesis of the region's insular history It combines the results of the authors 55 years of archaeological research on almost every island in the three archipelagoes with that of their numerous colleagues and collaborators The presentation operates on multiple scales temporal spatial local regional environmental social and political In addition individual sites are used to highlight specific issues For the first time the complete histories of the major islands and island groups are elucidated and new insights are gained through island comparisons The book takes a step back from current debates regarding nomenclature to offer a common foundation and the opportunity for a fresh beginning In this regard the original concepts of series and ages provide structure and the diversity of expressions subsumed by these concepts is embraced Historical names such as Taino and Lucayan are avoided The authors challenge the long held conventional wisdom concerning island colonization societal organization interaction and transculturation inter and intra regional transactions exchange and other basic elements of cultural development and change The emphasis is on those elements that unite the Bahamas Lesser Antilles and Greater Antilles as a culture area and also on their divergent pathways Colonization is presented as a multifaceted wave like process Continuing ties to the surrounding mainland are highlighted Interactions between residents and new colonists are recognized with individual histories contingent on these historical interactions New solutions are offered to the Huecoid problem the Carib problem the Taino problem and the evolution of social complexity especially in Puerto Rico These solutions required a rethinking of social organization and its expression on the landscape There comes a time when the old foundation can no longer support the structure that was built upon it this is that time
