Comprehensive Scale Manual for Violin Hans Wessely, 1928 Comprehensive scale manual for violin Hans Wessely, 1928 Contemporary Violin Fingering William Francis Siebers, 1971 The purpose of this research paper is to define some present day principles which govern the choice of fingering to show the extent of departure from tradition and the consequent influences on pedagogical practices The choice of fingering involves both musical and technical considerations While it is recognized that the two are related these considerations are discussed separately in order to facilitate clarity This investigation of violin fingering is in general a comparison of authoritative opinions and practices Through this comparison some general principles that govern the choice of fingering are set forth The fingerings that are considered technically correct are those that afford ease in execution The expediency of a technical fingering is based on consideration for the physical characteristics and capabilities of the hand and the individual fingers definition of natural finger actions and the influences of various hand and arm adjustments The musical considerations that involve choice of fingering are influenced by both musical style and performance style Musical results take precedence over technical ease Since personal taste is involved the principles applying to the choice of a fingering for the purpose of musical affect are generally subjective Articulation and timbre are the principle musical aspects affected by fingering Articulation can be varied through action of the fingers in one position and through techniques used in changing position Timbre is varied not only by the choice of a string but by the attitude of the fingers the pressure they exert on a string and their size From the study of various contemporary musical editions and from the advice of violin authorities it is concluded that contemporary fingering practices are generally based on traditional techniques The selection of improper or irrational fingerings is a result of persistent habits derived from technical studies and a lack of consideration for the musical content of a particular composition The National Union Catalog, Pre-1956 Imprints, 1979 Carmen Pablo de Sarasate, 1922 The Joseph Szigeti collection Joseph Szigeti, 2000 Comprehensive scale manual Hans Wessely, 1890 Heifetz plays Gershwin George Gershwin, Jascha Heifetz, 2000 Sixty etudes for violin, op. 45 Franz Wohlfahrt, 1986 Ciaccona in G minor for violin and piano Ferdinand David, Leopold Auer, 199? Larghetto lamentoso Leopold Godowsky, Fritz Kreisler, 2004 Baal Shem Ernest Bloch, 2001 Enth Abodah M lodie Nuit exotique Baal Shem Vidui Nigun Simchas Torah Scale studies for violin Jan Hřimalý, 1900 Scale system Carl Flesch, 1926 Scale Studies for Violin Henry Schradieck, 1986-06 The Comprehensive Scale and Arpeggio Manual for Violin Léon J.
