Goodman, 2022-11-15 A marvelously illustrated reference to the natural wonders of one of the most spectacular places on earth Separated from Africa's mainland for tens of millions of years Madagascar has evolved a breathtaking wealth of biodiversity becoming home to thousands of species found nowhere else on the planet The New Natural History of Madagascar provides the most comprehensive up to date synthesis available of this island nation's priceless biological treasures Now fully revised and expanded this beautifully illustrated compendium features contributions by more than 600 globally renowned experts who cover the history of scientific exploration in Madagascar as well as the island's geology and soils climate forest ecology human ecology marine and coastal ecosystems plants invertebrates fishes amphibians reptiles birds and mammals This invaluable two volume reference also includes detailed discussions of conservation efforts in Madagascar that showcase several successful protected area programs that can serve as models for threatened ecosystems throughout the world Provides the most comprehensive overview of Madagascar's rich natural history Coedited by 18 different specialists Features hundreds of new contributions by world class experts Includes hundreds of new illustrations Covers a broad array of topics from geology and climate to animals plants and marine life Sheds light on newly discovered species and draws on the latest science An essential resource for anyone interested in Madagascar or tropical ecosystems in general from biologists and conservationists to ecotourists and armchair naturalists

Extinct Madagascar Steven M. Goodman, William L. Jungers, Velizar Simeonovski, 2014-09-04 The landscapes of Madagascar have long delighted zoologists who have discovered in and among the island's baobab trees and thickets a dizzying array of animals including something approaching one hundred species of lemur Madagascar's mammal fauna for example is far more diverse and more endemic than early explorers and naturalists ever dreamed of But in the past 2 500 or so years a period associated with natural climatic shifts and ecological change as well as partially coinciding with the arrival of the island's first human settlers a considerable proportion of Madagascar's forests have disappeared and in the wake of this loss a number of species unique to Madagascar have vanished forever into extinction In Extinct Madagascar noted scientists Steven M Goodman and William L Jungers explore the recent past of these land animal extinctions Beginning with an introduction to the geologic and ecological history of Madagascar that provides context for the evolution diversification and in some cases rapid decline of the Malagasy fauna Goodman and Jungers then seek to recapture these extinct mammals in their environs Aided in their quest by artist Velizar Simeonovski's beautiful and haunting digital paintings images of both individual species and ecosystem assemblages reproduced here in full color Goodman and Jungers reconstruct the lives of these lost animals and trace their relationships to those still living Published in conjunction with an exhibition of Simeonovski's artwork set to open at the Field Museum Chicago in the fall of 2014 Goodman and Jungers's awe inspiring book will serve not only as a sobering reminder of the very real threat of extinction but also as a stunning tribute to Madagascar's biodiversity and a catalyst for further research and conservation A Floral and Faunal Inventory of the Réserve Naturelle Intégrale D'Andohahela, Madagascar Steven M. Goodman,1999 Mammalia ,2006 The Zoological Record ,2003 NATURAL CHANGE HUMAN IMPACT GOODMAN STEVEN M,Bruce D. Patterson,1997-03-17 A miniature continent long isolated from the African mainland the island of Madagascar evolved a biota that remains one of the most varied of any environment in the world Bringing together the work of the most innovative conservation and evolutionary biologists geologists and anthropologists currently working in Madagascar this book provides the first overview in more than twenty years of how natural and human induced changes have molded the island s modern ecosystems Natural Change and Human Impact in Madagascar reflects new methods for understanding biotic and environmental change worldwide A Floral and Faunal Inventory of the Eastern Slopes of the Réserve Naturelle Intégrale D'Andringitra, Madagascar Steven M. Goodman,1996 Les Carnivora de Madagascar Steven M. Goodman,2012 Madagascar with its unique and highly endemic flora and fauna is a world conservation priority Thirteen species of Carnivora are currently known to exist on the island ten belonging to the endemic family Eupleridae and with the balance introduced by humans Since the pioneering work carried out on Madagascar s Carnivora in the 1970s numerous other research projects have been conducted on these animals and this pocket sized book provides an up to date synthesis of these studies Written in non technical French and featuring beautiful illustrations of all Malagasy carnivorans this is the only recent book in any language that covers the entirety of Madagascar s introduced and endemic Carnivora species It offers particular insight into Eupleridae The different species that make up this endemic family all originate from a common ancestor that millions of years ago somehow traversed the Mozambique Channel colonized the island and subsequently evolved into the Eupleridae species of today This book shows that although Eupleridae display morphological similarities to other Carnivora in the world such as civets mongooses and cats these similarities are in fact the product of convergent evolution The Biogeography of Malagasy Rodents (Nesomyinae) and Lipotyphlans (Tenrecidae) Steven M. Goodman,2000
