Caribbean History Paper 1:

Igniting the Caribbean's Past Bonham C. Richardson, 2005-12-15 Unlike the earthquakes and hurricanes that have influenced Caribbean history the region's fires have almost always been caused by humans Geographer Bonham C Richardson explores the effects of fire in the social and ecological history of the British Lesser Antilles from the British Virgin Islands south to Trinidad Focusing on the late nineteenth century leading to the 1905 withdrawal of British military forces from the region Richardson shows how fire lit social upheavals served as forerunners of political independence movements Drawing on Caribbean and London archives as well as years of fieldwork Richardson examines how villagers used modified and contemplated fire in part to vent their frustrations with a savage economic depression and social and political inequities imposed from afar He examines fire in all its forms from protest torches to sugarcane fires that threatened the islands economic staple Richardson illuminates a neglected period in Caribbean history by showing how local uses of fire have been catalysts and even causes of important changes in the region

Resilience in the Pacific and the Caribbean Simon Hollis, 2020-10-26 This book critically examines the global diffusion and local reception of resilience through the implementation of Disaster Risk Reduction DRR programmes in Pacific and Caribbean island states Global efforts to strengthen local disaster resilience capacities have become a staple of international development activity in recent decades yet the successful implementation of DRR projects designed to strengthen local resilience remains elusive While there are pockets of success a gap remains between global expectations and local realities Through a critical realist study of global and local worldviews of resilience in the Pacific and Caribbean islands this book argues that the global advocacy of DRR remains inadequate because of a failure to prioritise a person orientated ethics in its conceptualization of disaster resilience This regional comparison provides a valuable lens to understand the underlying social structures that makes resilience possible and the extent to which local governments communities and persons interpret and modify their behaviour on risk when faced with the global message on resilience This book will be of much interest to students of resilience risk management development studies and area studies
