differentiated appointment types The model considers a session of consecutive appointments for a single provider primary care practice where one nurse and one provider see the patients We then extend the integer programming model to account for multiple resources two nurses and two providers since we have observed that such team primary care practices are common in the course of our data collection study In these practices nurses prepare patients for the providers appointments as a team while providers are dedicated to their own patients to ensure continuity of care Our analysis focuses on finding the value of nurse flexibility and understanding the interaction between the schedules of the two providers The team practice leads us to a challenging and novel multi step multi resource mixed integer stochastic scheduling formulation as well as methods to tackle the ensuing computational challenge We also develop an Excel scheduling tool for both single provider and team practices to explore the performance of different schedules in real time Overall the main objective of the dissertation is to provide easy to implement scheduling guidelines for primary care practices using both an empirically driven stochastic optimization model and a simulation tool
