Fandom in the Digital Age ,2021 With the rise of social media as a cultural staple in entertainment industries such as music Instagram changes the landscape of the artist fan connection and muddles the boundaries of parasocial relationships in a digital space While a wealth of research exists on how fans perceive mediated relationships the perspective of the artist and how they navigate this connectivity is missing from the discourse This study builds on the current literature surrounding mediated artist fan interactions and examines how music artists use Instagram to build strong loyal relationships with fans through the lens of parasocial relationships Through interviews with up and coming artists and music industry professionals this study concluded that in using Instagram to build valuable fan connections artists view online interactions as mutually beneficial for fans and themselves and build a community around their music through self disclosure and providing more valuable content to followers While these parasocial relationships crafted through Instagram may not grant fans full access to their favorite artists the opportunity for artists to engage with their fans can still blur the boundaries of a true parasocial relationship
