Transcultural Counselling in Action Patricia D'Ardenne, Aruna Mahtani, 1989 Can a counselor's or client's culture affect the counseling process? Should counselors confine themselves to counseling only those from their own culture? Transcultural Counselling in Action offers a new approach to the counseling process that addresses the problems often posed by cultural differences. Drawing on examples from community groups liaison and advocacy workers, mental health specialists, and from professionals already working with other cultures, this practical volume walks the counselor through the transcultural counseling process. Main themes are summarized, the response of professionals to the process is evaluated, and the implications for counseling in a multicultural society are addressed. With so little literature existing on transcultural counseling, this volume will serve as an essential guide to anyone working with groups or individuals from other cultures. The book serves its purpose well in terms of both the transcultural issues highlighted and the handling of issues arising in the process of transcultural counseling. Contemporary Psychology The fundamental assumptions made by the authors are evident throughout the book and highlight the need for the reader to question their personal stance on these issues. This in itself is a useful exercise for the transcultural counselor. This book meets its aim of providing guidelines of good practice in counseling. New Community Transcultural Counselling in Action, 1989 Transcultural Counselling Zack Eleftheriadou, 1994

The Handbook Of Transcultural Counselling And Psychotherapy Lago, Colin, 2011-10-01 This fascinating book examines recent critical thinking and research findings in the field of transcultural counseling and psychotherapy. Transcultural Counseling John McFadden, 1993 Transcultural Counseling: Bilateral and International Perspectives will challenge everything you know about being a culturally responsive counselor. It provides insight into counselor education programs designed for the twenty first century, includes a broad introduction to a variety of cultural terms and their implications to counseling, provides techniques and paradigms recommended for counseling individuals from diverse cultural backgrounds, and shows a historical evolution of transcultural counseling and its significance in a changing world. Race, Culture, and Counselling Colin Lago, Joyce Thompson, 1996 Some of the major dimensions and subtleties underlying issues of race and culture and the impact these can have on counseling and psychotherapy relationships are explored. The context is British but many of the issues and concerns are applicable to therapists in other societies Chapter 1 describes the climate in which the discussion is set a climate where counseling and psychotherapy are established as healing systems Issues of race and power are analyzed The cultural backgrounds of the counselor and the client have important implications for the understanding they develop Sensitivity fostered by the counselor's training and theoretical background is essential in order that the minority person finds in counseling the opportunity to express thoughts and acknowledge experiences A conceptual model is presented to help the counselor understand a variety of culturally appropriate helping interventions The text also offers transcripts from transcultural counseling sessions that may be used for training and discussion purposes Very real challenges face the counselor in today's multiracial and multicultural world and it is essential that counseling not become another oppressive or damaging instrument of society Contains 2 tables 22 figures and 227 references SLD
