After the completion of the construction of the first bridge, the government issued a decree to the Ministry of the Interior and the Ministry of Communications, mandating that the new bridge be built, and the other three should be demolished because they were no longer required. This policy was, however, soon abandoned in 1903. The government then began to implement a policy of protection of the old bridges from demolition, and the government and local authorities planned the reconstruction of the old bridge, resulting in the construction of the second bridge.

The Covenant Connection Daniel Judah Elazar, John Kincaid, 2000-01-01 American European political and theological histories intersect in this important new exploration of the founding of the United States. The Covenant Connection examines the way in which the Protestant Reformation and federal covenant theology which lay at the foundation of Reformed Protestantism in its Calvinist version played a major role in shaping the political life and ideas of the colonies of British North America and ultimately the new United States of America. Contributors to the volume look at the most critical facets of this connection over nearly three centuries from the beginning of the Reformation in sixteenth century Zurich to the declaration of American independence and the writing of the U.S. Constitution. Individual chapters show how federal theology led to a revival of Biblical republicanism in Reformation Europe how it was applied and modified in countries such as Switzerland the Netherlands Scotland and England and how it was carried across the Atlantic by the early settlers of North America most particularly the Puritans but also other groups such as the Dutch and the Scots to form the matrix for American constitutionalism democratic republicanism and federalism. As a collection The Covenant Connection provides an irrefutable analysis of the profound biblical and Reformation influences on the founding of America.
