Integrated Catastrophe Risk Modeling Aniello Amendola,Tatiana Ermolieva,Joanne Linnerooth-Bayer,Reinhard Mechler,2012-12-11 Efficient and equitable policies for managing disaster risks and adapting to global environmental change are critically dependent on development of robust options supported by integrated modeling The book is based on research and state of the art models developed at IIASA International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis and within its cooperation network It addresses the methodological complexities of assessing disaster risks which call for stochastic simulation optimization methods and economic modeling Furthermore it describes policy frameworks for integrated disaster risk management including stakeholder participation facilitated by user interactive decision support tools Applications and results are presented for a number of case studies at different problem scales and in different socio economic contexts and their implications for loss sharing policies and economic development are discussed Among others the book presents studies for insurance policies for earthquakes in the Tuscany region in Italy and flood risk in the Tisza river basin in Hungary Further it investigates the economic impact of natural disasters on development and possible financial coping strategies and applications are shown for selected South Asian countries The book is addressed both to researchers and to organizations involved with catastrophe risk management and risk mitigation policies

Macroeconomic Risk Management Against Natural Disasters Stefan Hochrainer,2007-12-14 Looking back in history we conceive the twentieth century as the century of wars Most likely we will conceive the twenty first century as the century of natural catastrophes Wars can be avoided unfortunately it did not happen often in history in contrast most natural disasters are outside human influence However the consequences of disasters can be alleviated by means of risk management For an effective risk management information is needed about i the size of the risk measured by the frequency and intensity of the hazard and ii the degree of vulnerability of the economy and society Stefan Hochrainer's thesis deals with measuring and modeling of both While the physical risk modeling is a well developed area within statistical modeling frequency analysis point processes extreme value theory etc estimating the economic consequences is a more challenging task The author studies economic effects of catastrophes by statistical analysis of macroeconomic data One interesting finding is that disasters can decrease the absolute level of economic performance such as the GDP while keeping growth levels nearly the same at least after some years as in the pre disaster years The boom of new products in the financial markets especially of new derivative instruments has led to new risk hedging instruments such as catastrophe bonds CAT bonds transfer the risk to the market of investors
