

Comprehensive Pathology Information Management

Cerner Millennium PathNet

PathNet is the Cerner Millennium Laboratory Information System (LIS). Your organisation can use it to support a variety of laboratory workflows, including general laboratory, microbiology, blood bank and cellular pathology.

Blood Services

PathNet General Laboratory enables online ordering of procedures, as well as performing, reviewing and verifying of results for assays assigned to specific laboratories and automated instruments in the general laboratory sections.

These sections include chemistry, haematology, urinalysis, coagulation, serology/immunology, toxicology and blood gases. Specimen management capabilities are also included.

In addition, the fully integrated laboratory solution supports shared processes and tasks across each of the laboratory disciplines.

General Laboratory supports departmental patient registration, order entry and inquiry, workflow reporting, departmental charting and reporting, operations management, system management, environment management and security.

Long-term storage of results online also is supported.

Blood Bank Transfusion

A related solution, PathNet Blood Bank Transfusion, tracks blood bank products, activities from receipt to final disposition.

This includes entering products into inventory, modifying, pooling, testing, donor matching, dispensing, transfusing to a patient, returning and shipping either to another institution or back to the supplier.

The solution also fully supports the long-term storage of results online and the use of autologous and directed products by tracking those products on a patient-specific basis.

Comprehensive specimen management capabilities such as bar-coded collection labels and detailed specimen tracking are provided as well.

Cytology Pathology

The PathNet Anatomic Pathology solution stores and imports pathology

Key Benefits

- Improves turnaround times, with auto lab accession and computerized documentation
- Reduces transcription errors and incorrect reports released by the laboratory
