What is anxiety? Anxiety is a normal human emotion that is part of our survival mechanism. It is a natural response to perceived threats or challenges, and it can help us stay alert and prepared for potential danger. However, when anxiety becomes excessive or persistent, it can interfere with our daily functioning and cause significant distress.

What is stress? Stress is a response to a demand or challenge that requires us to adjust our behavior or thoughts. It can be caused by a variety of factors, including work, family, relationships, and personal challenges. Stress can be acute (short-term) or chronic (long-term), and it can have both positive and negative effects on our health and well-being.

What is the difference between anxiety and stress? Anxiety and stress are often used interchangeably, but they are distinct emotional states. Anxiety is a more intense and persistent emotional state that is often associated with a sense of fear or apprehension. Stress, on the other hand, is a more general emotional state that is often associated with a sense of pressure or tension.
