

Chapter 15 - KEY Solutions

Solution - homogeneous mixture containing two or more substances called the solute and the solvent

A solution may exist as a gas (air), liquid (sugar and water), or solid (braces – titanium and nickel).

Most solutions are liquid.

Aqueous solutions - reactants and products that are mixed in water.

Water is the most common solvent among liquid solutions. It is known as the "universal solvent."

soluble - a substance that dissolves in a substance.

Ex. -sugar is soluble in water.

insoluble - a substance that does not dissolve in a solvent.

Ex. - sand is insoluble in water.

immiscible - 2 liquids that do not dissolve each other Ex. - oil and vinegar miscible - 2 liquids that are soluble in each other Ex. - food coloring and water solvation - the process of surrounding solute particles with solvent particles to form a solution.

If the attractive forces between a solute and a solvent are greater than the attractive forces holding the solute together, then the solvent particles pull the solute particles apart and surround them.

General rule is that "like dissolves like" (polar dissolves polar, nonpolar dissolves nonpolar, etc.)

Ex. – water and NaCl

Factors that affect rate of solvation –

1. agitation - moves the solute particles around and thereby allows for more collisions
2. Increase the surface area of the solute -this also allows more collisions to occur (tablespoon of sugar dissolves faster than a cube).
3. raising the temperature of the solvent -this increases the kinetic energy of its particles, resulting in more frequent collisions.

Heat of Solution - the overall energy change that occurs during the solvation process.

Energy is required to overcome the attractive forces within the solute and solvent (endothermic)

When solute and solvent mix, the particles attract each other and release energy (exothermic)

Solubility - maximum amount of solute that will dissolve in a given amount of solvent at a specified temp. and pressure.

Saturated solution - contains the maximum amount of dissolved solute for a given amount of solvent at a specific temp. and pressure

Unsaturated Solution - contains less dissolved solute for a given temp. and pressure than a saturated solution
