Description

Cerberus Pyrotronics Remote LED Announcer units are designed to be used with the IXL Control Panel. It is an eight-point announcer containing sixteen LED's for the display of trouble and alarm status of initiating devices.

LED Series Remote Announciators can be located in the building lobby or in a protected area. In its quiescent mode of operation, all LED's are off. In the event of an alarm, a red LED will light to indicate which device or zone is in alarm. To report troubles (i.e., removal of a detector head), the corresponding yellow LED will light, indicating which devices have been programmed as a single zone, then only one LED will light regardless of the number of devices in that zone indicating the trouble condition. The Remote Announcer may be tested by using the Lamp Test feature of the Control Panel to indicate proper functioning of the LED's.

Announciators perform the important service of pinpointing the location of the alarm device or the zone from which an alarm originates.

cation Line. This announcer shall be addressable and shall not require DIP switches or jumper settings for its identification. The remote LED announcer shall be Cerberus Pyrotronics model LED-1, LED-2.

Operation

Cerberus Ixl Manual:

Motion Picture Exhibition in Washington, D.C. Robert K. Headley, 2015-08-13 From inauspicious beginnings in the kinetoscope parlors and nickelodeons to the movie palaces of the golden era and finally to the pared down multiplexes of today this is the history of motion picture viewing in the nation's capital and vicinity. The research is supported by numerous interviews. The book includes a 200 page listing of all the movie theaters in the area past and present with data such as location, dates of operation, architect and seating capacity as well as a summary of each theater's history and current status. Maps, drawings and photographs, most of which have never before been published, round out this comprehensive study.
