

The background image is a close-up, slightly blurred view of the instrument panel of a Cessna 182 aircraft. It features a variety of analog gauges, including a large airspeed indicator on the left and a tachometer on the right. There are also several digital displays, including a multifunction display in the center showing a map or terrain. The panel is densely packed with controls, switches, and labels, typical of a general aviation aircraft. The overall color scheme is dark, with the instrument panel appearing in shades of blue and grey.
