The Language of Canon Law Judith Hahn, 2023 In this book Judith Hahn explores the legal order of the Roman Catholic Church to better understand how the Roman Catholic Church communicates as a legal institution She argues that the language of canon law reveals the political ideology of the church hierarchy and she takes up the tools of language and law scholarship to examine and challenge that language Hahn examines the grammar and terminology of canon law and how canon law language makes use of linguistic tricks and techniques to create its typical sound and discusses the comprehension difficulties that arise out of ambiguities in the law out of transfer problems between legal and common language and out of canon law's confusing mix of legal doctrinal and moral norms

Confronting the Death Penalty Robin Conley, 2015 Confronting the Death Penalty probes how jurors make the ultimate decision about whether another human being should live or die Drawing on ethnographic and qualitative linguistic methods this book explores how language including written laws and trial talk affects jurors death penalty decisions By focusing on how language can both facilitate and stymie empathic encounters Conley investigates the interface between experiential and linguistic aspects of legal decision making to address the moral conflict faced by jurors that is inherent to death penalty trials

Language and Social Justice in Practice Netta Avineri, Laura R. Graham, Eric J. Johnson, Robin Conley Riner, Jonathan Rosa, 2018-12-12 From bilingual education and racial epithets to gendered pronouns and immigration discourses language is a central concern in contemporary conversations and controversies surrounding social inequality Developed as a collaborative effort by members of the American Anthropological Association's Language and Social Justice Task Force this innovative volume synthesizes scholarly insights on the relationship between patterns of communication and the creation of more just societies Using case studies by leading and emergent scholars and practitioners written especially for undergraduate audiences the book is ideal for introductory courses on social justice in linguistics and anthropology

Deadly Justice Frank R. Baumgartner, Marty Davidson, Kaneesha R. Johnson, Arvind Krishnamurthy, 2018 Forty years and 1 400 executions after the U S Supreme Court ruled the death penalty constitutional eminent political scientist Frank Baumgartner and a team of younger scholars have collaborated to assess the empirical record and provide a definitive account of how the death penalty has been implemented A Statistical Portrait of the Death Penalty shows that all the flaws that caused the Supreme Court to invalidate the death penalty in 1972 remain and indeed that new problems have arisen Far from perfecting the mechanism of death the modern system has failed Cooperation without Submission Justin B. Richland, 2021-09-06 A meticulous and thought provoking look at how Tribes use language to engage in cooperation without submission It is well known that there is a complicated relationship between Native American Tribes and the US government Relations between Tribes and the federal government are dominated by the principle that the government is supposed to engage in meaningful consultations with the tribes about issues that affect them In Cooperation without Submission Justin B. Richland an associate justice of the Hopi Appellate Court and ethnographer closely examines the language employed by both Tribes and government agencies in over eighty hours of meetings between the two Richland shows how Tribes conduct these meetings using language that demonstrates their commitment to nation to nation interdependency while federal agents appear to approach these consultations with the assumption that federal law is supreme and ultimately authoritative In other words Native American Tribes see themselves as nations with some degree of independence entitled to recognition of their sovereignty over Tribal lands while the federal government acts to limit that authority In this vital book Richland sheds light on the ways the Tribes use their language to engage in cooperation without submission Confronting the Death Penalty Associate Professor of Anthropology Robin Conley Riner, 2020-11 Confronting the Death Penalty How Language Influences Jurors in Capital Cases probes how jurors make the ultimate decision about whether another human being should live or die

Drawing on ethnographic and qualitative linguistic methods this book explores the means through which language helps to make death penalty decisions possible how specific linguistic choices mediate and restrict jurors attorneys and judges actions and experiences while serving and reflecting on capital trials The analysis draws on fifteen months of ethnographic fieldwork in diverse counties across Texas including participant observation in four capital trials and post verdict interviews with the jurors who decided those cases Given the impossibility of access to actual capital jury deliberations this integration of methods aims to provide the clearest possible window into jurors decision making Using methods from linguistic anthropology conversation analysis and multi modal discourse analysis Conley analyzes interviews trial talk and written legal language to reveal a variety of communicative practices through which jurors dehumanize defendants and thus judge them to be deserving of death By focusing on how language can both facilitate and stymie empathic encounters the book addresses a conflict inherent to death penalty trials jurors literally face defendants during trial and then must distort diminish or negate these face to face interactions in order to sentence those same defendants to death The book reveals that jurors cite legal ideologies of rational dispassionate decision making conveyed in the form of authoritative legal language when negotiating these moral conflicts By investigating the interface between experiential and linguistic aspects of legal decision making the book breaks new ground in studies of law and language language and psychology and the death penalty Ohio State
