A focus is a point about which the conic section is constructed. It is a point about which rays from the curve converge.

A directrix is a line used to construct and define a conic section. The distance of a directrix from a point on the conic section has a constant ratio to the distance from that point to the focus.

Definition and Properties of a Circle

A circle is a shape of a circle that can be defined as the set of all points in a plane that are at a constant distance from a fixed point in the plane. The fixed point is called the center of the circle. The constant distance is called the radius of the circle.
