Object Properties docker

The Object Properties docker (Window ▸ Dockers ▸ Object Properties) presents object-dependent formatting options and properties.

For example, if you create a rectangle, the Object Properties docker automatically presents outline, fill, and transparency options, as well as the rectangle's properties. If you create a text frame, the docker will instantly display character, paragraph, and frame formatting options, as well as the text frame's properties.
Fill types

You can fill objects with uniform, fountain, pattern, texture, PostScript, and mesh fills.

Fountain fills have a smooth progression of two or more colors.

You can also fill objects with vector graphics (vector pattern fills) or bitmap images (bitmap pattern fills).
Texture fills can simulate the look and feel of natural materials such as water, clouds, and stone. PostScript fills are complex texture fills that are created in the PostScript language.

Mesh fills create smooth color transitions to give objects volume and realistic three-dimensional effects.

To fill an object, choose the type of fill you want in the Fill area of the Object Properties docker, and choose the fill options you want. To apply a mesh fill, use the Mesh fill tool ⊞.

To apply a preset fountain or pattern fill, choose the type of fill you want in the Fill area of the Object Properties docker, open the Fill picker, and double-click a fill.

Choose colors

A color palette is a collection of color swatches. You can choose both fill and outline colors by using the default color palette. The selected fill and outline colors appear in the color swatches on the status bar.

To fill an object with a solid (uniform) color, click a color swatch on the color palette, or drag a color onto an object.

To change the outline color, right-click a color swatch on the color palette, or drag a color onto the outline of the object.

To mix colors, select a colored object, press Ctrl, and click another color on the color palette.

To choose from different shades of a color, click and hold a color swatch.

You can also choose fill and outline colors from the color dialog boxes by double-clicking the Fill button 🎨 or the Outline button 🖊 on the status bar.

Color styles and harmonies

The Color Styles docker lets you add the colors used in a document as color styles. To create a color style from an object, simply drag the object onto the Color Styles docker. Any time you update a color style, you also update all objects using that color style. A color harmony is a group of matching color styles that are linked to produce a color scheme. You can apply a rule to a color harmony to shift all colors together and create alternate color schemes.
