The Emergence of the Digital Humanities Steven E. Jones, 2013-08-15 The past decade has seen a profound shift in our collective understanding of the digital network What was once understood to be a transcendent virtual reality is now experienced as a ubiquitous grid of data that we move through and interact with every day raising new questions about the social locative embodied and object oriented nature of our experience in the networked world In The Emergence of the Digital Humanities Steven E Jones examines this shift in our relationship to digital technology and the ways that it has affected humanities scholarship and the academy more broadly Based on the premise that the network is now everywhere rather than merely out there Jones links together seemingly disparate cultural events the essential features of popular social media the rise of motion control gaming and mobile platforms the controversy over the gamification of everyday life the spatial turn fabrication and 3D printing and electronic publishing and argues that cultural responses to changes in technology provide an essential context for understanding the emergence of the digital humanities as a new field of study in this millennium The Open Access version of this book available at <https://doi.org/10.4324/9780203093085> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license Arts & Humanities Citation Index, 2002

The Digital Word George P. Landow, Paul Delany, 1993 This book explores the larger realm of the knowledge infrastructure where texts are received reconstructed and sent over global networks The sixteen essays collected in The Digital Word continue Landow and Delany's exploration of the new fluid digitized text begun in Hypermedia and Literary Studies 1991 which focused on the linking of text graphics or sound into structures typically bound within a single computer or local area network This book explores the larger realm of the knowledge infrastructure where texts are received reconstructed and sent over global networks It covers text management textual resources and communication and working with texts In their introductory essay Landow and Delany address the impact of such developments as the dematerialization of text which exists only as a piece of code and the manipulability of text based computing searches editing comparison and analysis which shifts the balance of power from text to reader Digital texts the law sources distribution and management of texts and the need for new procedures that will make explorations of the boundless universe of text more effective are touched on as well Current examinations of text management include the FreeText Project and personal information retrieval a taxonomy of text management software and markup systems including a clear authoritative discussion of Standard Generalized Markup Languages Essays in the next section take up such disparate aspects of textual resources and communications as corpus based linguistics networked library services personal docuverses for the individual scholar and the new forms of scholarly communications created by electronic mail and electronic conferencing A concluding section on working with texts surveys what has been variously called computer criticism computer aided criticism and electronic text analysis in relation to textual editing literary interpretation and our practice of reading and writing in an electronic age
