Death, and Archaeology at Fort Blue Mounds Robert A. Birmingham,2012-08-01 Life Death and Archaeology at Fort Blue Mounds is an archaeological detective story illuminating the lives of white settlers in the lead mining region during the tragic events of the historically important conflict known as the Black Hawk War Focusing on the strategically located Fort Blue Mounds in southwestern Wisconsin Robert A Birmingham summarizes the 1832 conflict and details the history of the fort which played a major role not only in U S military and militia operations but also in the lives of the white settlers who sought refuge there Birmingham then transports us to the site decades later when he and fellow Wisconsin Historical Society archaeologists and dedicated volunteers began their search for the fort The artifacts they unearthed provide fascinating and sometimes surprising insights into the life material culture and even the food of the frontier Recommended for readers interested in the Black Hawk War frontier life Native American history military history and archaeology Life Death and Archaeology at Fort Blue Mounds is grounded by a sense of place and the discovery of what a careful examination of our surroundings can tell us about the past The Second Death and the Restitution of All Things Andrew John Jukes,1878

The crosstalk between emerging cell death and immune microenvironment remodeling in cancer progression and treatment Bufu Tang,Xuanzhang Huang, Weiliang Hou,Ling Wang ,Jifeng Wang,2025-11-13 The field of cancer research has increasingly focused on the intricate interplay between regulated cell death RCD pathways and the immune microenvironment in tumor progression and treatment Regulated cell death encompassing processes such as ferroptosis curroptosis and pan apoptosis plays a pivotal role in organismal development and disease pathogenesis Recent studies have highlighted the significance of these cell death mechanisms in tumorigenesis suggesting their potential as therapeutic targets Ferroptosis characterized by iron dependent phospholipid peroxidation is particularly relevant in treatment resistant cancer cells which are often in a stromal state and prone to metastasis Curroptosis a copper and mitochondria dependent cell death mechanism and pan apoptosis mediated by the PANoptosome complex further expand the landscape of RCD Despite these advances the precise mechanisms by which these pathways influence the tumor immune microenvironment remain inadequately understood necessitating further investigation to harness their therapeutic potential This research topic aims to explore the effects of emerging regulatory cell death modes on tumor disease development and progression with a focus on remodeling the tumor immune microenvironment By examining the crosstalk between tumor progression and treatment through the lens of ferroptosis curroptosis and pan apoptosis the research seeks to uncover novel therapeutic strategies that can beneficially impact neoplastic diseases Key objectives include identifying biomarkers and mechanisms of these RCD pathways understanding their complex effects on the immune microenvironment and evaluating potential novel drugs and nanoparticles that modulate these processes To gather further insights into the crosstalk between emerging cell death pathways and immune microenvironment remodeling in cancer we welcome articles addressing but not limited to the following themes Biomarkers and mechanisms of curroptosis ferroptosis or pan apoptosis in inflammatory diseases Complex effects of emerging forms of tumor cell death on the immune microenvironment as well as the regulated death of other cells in the immune microenvironment that affect tumor biology Combination study of the crosstalk effects of curroptosis ferroptosis and pan apoptosis in tumor progression and treatment The potential novel drugs and nanoparticles to induce or inhibit new RCD pathways and their therapeutic effects on cancer Effects of modulating RCD processes on cancer drug resistance Please note manuscripts consisting solely of bioinformatics or computational analysis of public genomic or transcriptomic databases which are not accompanied by validation independent cohort or biological validation in vitro or in vivo are out of scope for this section and will not be accepted as part of this Research Topic
