Commerce Nations C F Bastable:

The Commerce of Nations Charles Francis Bastable, Theodor Emanuel Gregory, 1923 The Commerce of Nations C. Bastable, 2020-05 This is undoubtedly the most scientific volume which has yet come under our notice of the series to which it belongs Professor Bastable's previous writings on the subject of international trade form a guarantee for sound and careful reasoning which is fulfilled in the little book before us He has if we may say so made a department of economics which is perhaps the most intricate and perplexing within the range of the science in a certain sense his own and yet he has also in this book as it appears to us been singularly successful in combining fullness of knowledge and profundity of thought with lucid and interesting explanation of practical fact It is a strange coincidence that in England at any rate perhaps the greatest success of economics in the domain of practice has been achieved in the department so difficult in theory of international trade but the success was won by the help of the inevitable logic of stubborn fact rather than by the assistance of the nice refinements of theory and the persistency with which protectionist fallacies linger among us and still continue to captivate even able intellects is one indication of a failure to grasp the essential elements of the economic theory of international trade In discussing then the subject of the commerce of nations Professor Bastable is dealing with what is still a question of to day and will we imagine for some time continue to be so although the tendency of thought and of practice may really incline in the hopeful direction indicated by him in his last chapter He has endeavored throughout his treatment of this burning social question to be both scientific and popular and to combine an account of facts with a statement of theory He therefore begins by giving a brief review of the theory of international trade and by examining the part played in it by money This naturally leads to a temperate account of the mercantile system and its later development into protection The English customs system from 1815 to 1860 and the tariff system so contrary in its methods and tendencies of the United States are then reviewed The reform of continental tariffs from 1816 to 1865 and the recent protectionist reaction which has succeeded to the marked and general inclination in the direction of greater commercial liberty which followed on the adoption of free trade by England are considered in the following chapters and the similar recent tendencies of colonial tariffs next receive attention Professor Bastable then passes back from the region of fact to the sphere of theory and supplies a fair but destructive account of the modern protectionist theory He presents and criticises successively the chief economic arguments advanced in its favour and then proceeds to review the non economic arguments which are based on social or political grounds This is followed by a criticism of the other expedients of the system besides import duties such as bounties or export duties and by an account of the practical complications and jobbery and smuggling to which protection seems inevitably to lead and then two concluding chapters are devoted to the more modern proposals for reciprocity or retaliation and for commercial federation Within the necessarily confined limits of a convenient handbook Professor Bastable has thus managed to compress what would otherwise have to be sought through many volumes of no inconsiderable size and this is we think especially apparent in his chapter on the arguments put forward on behalf of protection Journal of the Canadian Bankers' Association Canadian Bankers' Association,1901 The Encyclopaedia Britannica: Shu to Tom ,1911 Encyclopaedia Britannica: Submarine Mines-Tom-Tom Hugh Chisholm,1911 This eleventh edition was developed during the encyclopaedia s transition from a British to an American publication Some of its articles were written by the best known scholars of the time and it is considered to be a landmark encyclopaedia for scholarship and literary style The Encyclopædia Britannica: Submarine Mines-Tom-tom ,1911 Encyclopedia Britannica ,1911 Clare Market Review ,1920 The Preces Privatae of Lancelot Andrewes, Bishop of Winchester Lancelot Andrewes,1903 Revival: The Business of Insurance (1904) Alexander Johnstone Wilson,2018-05-08 This little book is in no sense intended to be of use to insurance experts It is written by an outsider mainly for the ignorant for the multitude who either wish to insure their lives or to whom the insurance agent is for ever coming with his proposals his promises and blandishments My doctrine is that every man ought to insure his life the moment he arrives at a period or position when his responsibility extends over the lives of others If this duty were regarded as an imperative one by the community at large there would be little or no necessity for the elaborate machinery required by our life offices to induce people to invest in life or other insurance policies but as long as apathy prevails such agencies must be maintained and a ceaseless activity displayed by the offices in tempting investors to enter into policy contracts The Woman with the Fan Robert Hichens,1904 IN a large and cool drawing room of London a few people were scattered about listening to a soprano voice that was singing to the accompaniment of a piano The sound of the voice came from an inner room towards which most of these people were looking earnestly Only one or two seemed indifferent to the fascination of the singer Erb William Pett Ridge,1903 Griff of Griffithscourt Helen Mathers,1903 A Change of Face Thomas Cobb,1904 Johanna Bithia Mary Croker,1903 Saïd the Fisherman Marmaduke Pickthall,1903 A Book of Exmoor Frederick John Snell,1903 A Frontiersman Roger Pocock,1904 Garnered Richard Marsh,1904 Abandoned William Clark Russell,1904
