China Sir Henry Arthur Blake,1909      China Henry Arthur Blake,2015-12-01 China from Henry Arthur Blake British colonial administrator 1840 1918      China Sir Henry Arthur Blake,2013 China The population of China is composed of different tribes or clans whose records date back to the dynasty of Fuh hi 2800 B C Sometimes divided in separate kingdoms sometimes united by waves of conquest the northern portion was welded into one empire by the conqueror Ghengis Khan in A D 1234 and seventy years later the southern portion was added by his son Kublai Khan who overthrew the Sung dynasty It was during his reign that China was visited by Marco Polo from the records of whose travels we find that even at that time the financial system of the Far East was so far advanced that paper money was used by the Chinese while in the city of Cambaluc the Peking of to day Christian Saracen and Chinese astrologers consulted an astrolabe to forecast the nature of the weather thus anticipating the meteorological bureaux of to day There are however still districts in the southern 4portion of China where the aboriginal inhabitants have never accepted the position of complete incorporation with the Chinese neighbours In the mountain district between the provinces of Kwangtung and Hunan a tribe exists known as the Yu people in whose territory no Chinese officials are permitted to reside nor do they allow strangers to enter their towns which are built on crags difficult of access and capable of offering a stubborn resistance to attack Their chief occupation is forestry the timber being cut during the winter and floated down the mountain streams when in flood Their customs are peculiar Among them is the vendetta which is practised by the Yu alone of all the people in the Far East But no woman is ever injured and even during the fiercest fighting the women can continue their work in the fields with safety Their original home was in Yunnan and the western part of Kwangsi from whence they were driven out by the Chinese in the time of the Sung dynasty The Yu Lolos Miao tse Sy fans etc all Chinese names expressive of contempt like our barbarians are stated by Ma tonan lin and other Chinese historians to have been found inhabiting the country when six thousand years ago it was occupied by the ancestors of the Chinese who came from the north west The savage inhabitants were gradually driven into the 5hills where their descendants are still found Their traditions point to their having been cannibals Intermarriage with the Chinese is very rare the Chinese regarding such a union as a m salliance and the aboriginal peoples as a cowardly desertion to the enemy The embroideries worked by the women are different from those of the Chinese and I am informed more resemble the embroideries now worked at Bethlehem They are worked on dark cloth in red or sometimes red and yellow      China ,1909
