

WHS Project Protection: The 2012-2013 Project Participation Protocol (Rev. 2012-04)

Project protection is a process of identifying and addressing potential risks to the project's success. This protocol outlines the steps and responsibilities for managing project protection.

Step 1: Identify Risks The project manager and team members should identify potential risks that could impact the project's success. These risks should be documented in a risk register.

Step 2: Assess Risks The project manager and team members should assess the likelihood and impact of each risk. This assessment will help prioritize the risks and determine the appropriate mitigation strategies.

Step 3: Develop Mitigation Strategies For each identified risk, the project manager and team members should develop mitigation strategies to reduce the risk's impact. These strategies should be documented in the risk register.

Step 4: Implement Mitigation Strategies The project manager and team members should implement the mitigation strategies developed in Step 3. This may involve changes to project plans, resource allocation, or communication strategies.

Step 5: Monitor and Update The project manager and team members should monitor the project's progress and update the risk register as needed. This will help ensure that the project remains protected from potential risks.

Step 6: Review and Improve After the project is completed, the project manager and team members should review the project protection process and identify areas for improvement.

Step 7: Document Lessons Learned The project manager and team members should document the lessons learned from the project protection process. This will help inform future project protection efforts.
