Special Publications Division, 1975 Explains the history of handicrafts in the United States including examples of work by silversmith Paul Revere carpenter Seth Story embroidery worker Mary Foot and many others The Training of a Craftsman (Classic Reprint) Fred Miller, 2016-09-09 Excerpt from The Training of a Craftsman Now that it is realised that the craftsman can be an artist whether carving a pew end or beating a finger plate just as much as if he were engaged in painting a picture the work of to day is more virile vehement and veracious than it has been any time within this century and to detach it therefore from all other work seemed to me the best way to give the present book value and distinction Though I address myself mainly to the student I venture to hope that this work may find its way into the hands of some few patrons for nothing is so crushing to the earnest craftsman as to find that though he stand in the market place waiting to be hired no one comes by him to engage his services and he is forced in consequence to remain dumb because no one will enable him to give his ego utterance As much responsibility rests with the patron as the craftsman in the production of good work and to see that which is not of good report preferred is a serious hindrance to progress in the art crafts It needs nearly as much training to be an intelligent appreciator as it does to be a producer though to be as accomplished as the latter requires a very real and long apprenticeship About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in
