Phonics Screening Check

What is phonics?

Phonics is the study of the sounds of words and how they are written. It is the study of the relationship between the sounds of words and the letters that represent them.

Phonics is a key part of learning to read and write. It helps children to understand how words are made and how they are written. This helps them to read and write more easily.

How is phonics taught?

Phonics is taught in a variety of ways. Some children learn to read by looking at the letters and sounds of words. Others learn by listening to the sounds of words and trying to write them.

Phonics is also taught through games and activities. Children can play word games, make words with letters, and use phonics to help them remember words.

Why is phonics important?

Phonics is important because it helps children to understand how words are made and how they are written. This helps them to read and write more easily. It also helps them to remember words and to understand the meaning of words.

What are the different types of phonics?

There are two main types of phonics: natural phonics and synthetic phonics. Natural phonics is based on the way that children learn to speak. Synthetic phonics is based on the way that words are made from individual sounds.

Phonics and reading

Phonics is a key part of learning to read. It helps children to understand how words are made and how they are written. This helps them to read more easily and to understand the meaning of words.

What is the phonics screening check?

The phonics screening check is a test that children take at the end of Year 1. It is designed to check whether children can hear and write the sounds of words. The test consists of 20 words that children have to read and write. The words are chosen to test children's knowledge of the sounds of words and their ability to write them.

The phonics screening check is an important part of the Year 1 curriculum. It helps teachers to understand how well children are learning phonics and to provide them with the support they need. It also helps parents to understand how well their children are learning phonics and to provide them with the support they need.
