General Concepts in Integrated Pest and Disease Management A. Ciancio, K.G. Mukerji, 2007-07-20 The proposal for this series originated during a short term visit of Professor Mukerji to the Plant Protection Institute of CNR at Bari Italy in November 2005 Both editors agreed on the need to produce a volume focusing on recent advances and achievements which changed the practice of crop protection in the last decade The opera rapidly evolved towards a long term editorial endeavour yielding a mul disciplinary series of five volumes In view of environmental and health concerns a determined effort is currently made in almost any agroecosystem in the world to reduce and rationalize the use of chemicals pesticides fungicides nematocides etc and to manage pests pathogens more effectively This consciousness is not only related to the need of nourishing a still growing world population but also derives from the impact of side effects of farming like soil water and environmental contamination calling for a responsible conservation of renewable resources There are increasing expectations at the producers and consumers levels concerning low inputs agriculture and residues free food Disciplines like IPM IDM integrated pest management integrated disease management are now central to the science and technology of crop protection In the classical version of IPM IDM a pesticide fungicide is applied only when the pathogen population reaches a level that would lead to economic losses in the crop In other words classical IPM IDM concentrates on reducing the numbers of noxious organisms through the application of agrochemicals
