Conducting Research In Conservation Social Science Methods And Practice:

Conducting Research in Conservation Helen Newing, 2010-10-18 Conducting Research in Conservation is the first textbook on social science research methods written specifically for use in the expanding and increasingly multidisciplinary field of environmental conservation. The first section on planning a research project includes chapters on the need for social science research in conservation, defining a research topic, methodology and sampling. Section two focuses on practical issues in carrying out fieldwork with local communities, from fieldwork preparation and data collection to the relationships between the researcher and the study community. Section three provides an in-depth focus on a range of social science methods, including standard qualitative and quantitative methods such as participant observation, interviewing and questionnaires, and more advanced methods such as ethnobiological methods for documenting local environmental knowledge and change, and participatory methods such as the PRA toolbox. Section four then demonstrates how to analyze social science data, qualitatively and quantitatively, and the final section outlines the writing up process and what should happen after the end of the formal research project. This book is a comprehensive and accessible guide to social science research methods for students of conservation-related subjects and practitioners trained in the natural sciences. It features practical, worldwide examples of conservation-related research in different ecosystems such as forests, grasslands, marine and riverine systems, and farmland. Boxes provide definitions of key terms, practical tips, and brief narratives from students and practitioners describe the practical issues that they have faced in the field.

Conducting Research in Conservation, 2010 This is a textbook on social science research methods for use in the multidisciplinary field of environmental conservation. It is divided into five useful sections and illustrated throughout with practical examples of conservation-related research from different parts of the world.

The Routledge Handbook of Research Methods for Social-Ecological Systems Reinette Biggs, Alta de Vos, Rika Preiser, Hayley Clements, Kristine Maciejewski, Maja Schlüter, 2021-07-29 The Routledge Handbook of Research Methods for Social Ecological Systems provides a synthetic guide to the range of methods that can be employed in social ecological systems (SES) research. The book is primarily targeted at graduate students, lecturers, and researchers working on SES and has been written in a style that is accessible to readers entering the field from a variety of different disciplinary backgrounds. Each chapter discusses the types of SES questions to which the particular methods are suited and the potential resources and skills required for their implementation and provides practical examples of the application of the methods. In addition, the book contains a conceptual and practical introduction to SES research, a discussion of key gaps and frontiers in SES research methods, and a glossary of key terms in SES research. Contributions from 97 different authors situated at SES research hubs in 16 countries around the world, including South Africa, Sweden, Germany, and Australia, bring a wealth of expertise and experience to this book. The first book to provide a guide and introduction specifically focused on methods for studying SES, this book will be of great interest to students and scholars of sustainability science, environmental management global environmental change studies and environmental governance The book will also be of interest to upper level undergraduates and professionals working at the science policy interface in the environmental arena

Carbon dioxide removal: Perspectives from the social sciences and humanities Anders Hansson, Mathias Fridahl, Miranda Boettcher, Shinichiro Asayama, 2024-07-09 Carbon dioxide removal CDR approaches are becoming increasingly central to visions of decarbonizing national economies The past few years have seen an increasing number of countries committed to net zero targets preceded by a surge of modelled 1.5°C scenarios envisioning large scale future CDR deployment The prospect of CDR deployment raises new complex socio ecological challenges and presents new deep uncertainties These complexities challenges and uncertainties cannot be investigated using solely the techno economic modelling and environmental risk assessment methods that currently dominate the construction of policy relevant knowledge on CDR Social sciences and the humanities perspectives on CDR are often restricted to instrumental tasks such as investigating public acceptance overcoming social resistance or supporting the development of integrated assessment models There is a need for more diverse investigations of CDR which include not only environmental and techno economic dimensions but also explore key societal complexities challenges and uncertainties Against this backdrop we call for submissions on CDR stemming from perspectives within the social sciences and humanities We encourage novel empirical and theoretical contributions on CDR related policy design or analyses of recent policy developments at sub national national and international levels of governance e.g. in context of climate targets and strategies climate tipping points mitigation deterrence or societal transformations

Nature and Culture Sarah Pilgrim, Jules N. Pretty, 2010-09-23 There is a growing recognition that the diversity of life comprises both biological and cultural diversity But this division is not universal and in many cases has been deepened by the common disciplinary divide between the natural and social sciences and our apparent need to manage and control nature This book goes beyond divisive definitions and investigates the bridges linking biological and cultural diversity The international team of authors explore the common drivers of loss and argue that policy responses should target both forms of diversity in a novel integrative approach to conservation thus reducing the gap between science policy and practice While conserving nature alongside human cultures presents unique challenges this book forcefully shows that any hope for saving biological diversity is predicated on a concomitant effort to appreciate and protect cultural diversity

Rethinking and Relearning Disaster Adaptations from and within Indigenous Land-Based Perspectives Ranjan Datta, Margot Hurlbert, Arifatul Kibria, Rajmoni Singha, Barsha Kairy, Somashree Chatterjee, 2025-01-30 This book offers a critical exploration into Indigenous knowledge systems particularly focusing on Indigenous land based knowledge and practice in reshaping disaster adaptations Drawing from Indigenous communities in Bangladesh this book challenges transformational approaches to disaster resilience by centering on land based perspectives intrinsic to Indigenous cultures The book showcases how Indigenous and land based minority communities in Bangladesh have historically coped with and adapted to environmental challenges It navigates beyond the Eurocentric paradigm acknowledging the richness of traditional Indigenous land based knowledge and practice embedded in the relationship between Indigenous peoples land based minority communities and their natural environments The book focuses on the interconnectedness of Indigenous land based knowledge culture and sustainable practices providing a blueprint for rethinking contemporary disaster adaptation strategies By relearning from Indigenous land based perspectives readers gain invaluable insights into holistic community based approaches prioritizing harmony with nature over technological fixes Through Indigenist decolonial relational and feminist theoretical research frameworks the book advocates for a paradigm shift in disaster management emphasizing the importance of respecting and integrating Indigenous land based solutions Rethinking and Relearning Disaster Adaptations from and within Indigenous Land Based Perspectives emerges as a crucial resource for scholars policymakers and practitioners seeking to foster resilience through a more inclusive and culturally sensitive lens Planning and
