This volume contains selected papers presented at the International Workshop on Computationally Intensive Methods in Simulation and Optimization held from 23 to 25 August 1990 at the International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis in Linz, Austria. The purpose of this workshop was to evaluate and to compare recently developed methods dealing with optimization in uncertain environments. It is one of the NASA's activities to study optimal decisions for uncertain systems and to make the result usable in economic, financial, ecological and resource planning. Over 40 participants from 12 different countries contributed to the success of the workshop. 12 papers were selected for this volume. Prof. A. Kurzhanski, Chairman of the Systems and Decision Sciences Program, NASA. Preface. Optimization in a random environment has become an important branch of Applied Mathematics and Operations Research. It deals with optimal decisions when only incomplete information of the future is available. Consider the following example: you have to make the decision about the amount of production although the future demand is unknown. If the size of the demand can be described by a probability distribution, the problem is called a stochastic optimization problem. Carolina Tips ,1986 Resources in Education ,1997 Research Grants Index National Institutes of Health (U.S.).
