Connecting Children To Nature:

Connecting Children to Nature Asher Cloran,2019-10-17 As a child my fondest memories were exploring in forests playing in creek beds finding groves of mushrooms digging in the dirt and building houses in trees Our connections and interactions with nature as we grow evolve and shape our bodies personality interests and passions in life Scientific research now shows how nature positively impacts our biology mental health learning and connections to the world and people around us Research also shows a decline in children s health learning sense of self and creativity that is correlated with the excessive use of technology and reduced time spent outdoors playing Now more than ever we must believe in the importance of sharing the gifts of nature and the love of nature with the world so they will care for what is most important the earth we live on the nature of our planet and our health and wellbeing This book has been written to give teachers and parents a solid foundation in the reasoning for nature connection and a toolkit full of ideas and tactics that will make nature connection with children stimulating educationally rewarding and life enriching for both the adult and the child The book condenses the scientific research on technology nature and how they impact childhood development and learning In a busy modern world that is ever changing it is important that parents and teachers are up to date and armed with the most relevant knowledge to deal with the culture the world that we are in the current challenges we face in science education and in the roles of parents mentors and teachers It is an easy to read practical guide that can help shape the way things are done in and out of the classroom to stimulate the creation of solid foundations for our children s connection to nature to flourish After all children deserve to have a lifelong loving and deep connection to the natural world around them so they can discover the magic of Life of Connecting Children With Nature U.S. Department of the Interior,2014-02-19 Reports or research investigations studying children in nature are rapidly expanding and increasingly diverse This document reports a review of a particular part of this field studies of constraints to recreation and participation in environmental and outdoor recreation programs The findings result from a review of more than 125 journal articles books and reports that were published between 1980 and 2009 This report discusses how the current information concerning constraints to participation can be understood in terms of four concentrations or foci of work generated in this particular field of study These foci which are all well established in the literature are 1 intrapersonal interpersonal and structural constraints 2 significant life experiences 3 environmental attitudes values and beliefs and 4 environmental behaviors The recent research associated with each of these research areas is discussed in successive sections of the review Nature Sparks Aerial Cross,2011-10-11 Nature has monumental power on children s growth and development Recent studies show that as children spend less time in nature they miss out on the profound benefits that outdoor play and learning experiences provide Nature Sparks is filled with inspiration and instruction to help educators and caregivers of children ages three to eight reclaim and strengthen connections to the outdoors This resource supplies ideas to create a nature oriented classroom and curriculum incorporates Howard Gardner's theory of multiple intelligences to encourage children's individual talents as they experience the natural world and includes more than fifty sensory integrated activities crafts and instructional strategies Story, Formation, and Culture Benjamin D.

Espinoza, James Riley Estep Jr., Shirley Morgenthaler, 2018-10-15 Story Formation and Culture brings together a myriad of scholars researchers and ministry leaders into conversation about how we can effectively nurture the spirituality of children Built around the three themes of story formation and culture this volume blends cutting edge research and insights with attention to how we can bring theory into practice in our ministries with children The work of children's spiritual formation is often a marginalized component in the church's overall ministry This volume seeks to equip pastors leaders and scholars with cutting edge research and practices that effectively strengthen their ministries with children Urbanization and Affordances that Promote Well-Being for (Urban) People and for a Healthy Biosphere Stephan Barthel, Marketta

Kyttä, 2020-01-30 The world is urbanizing at an unprecedented rate It is estimated that in the near future urban landscapes for another ca 2.7 billion people will be built on planet Earth approximately converting land equivalent to the size of South Africa Such land conversion coupled with citizen densification increasing in equalities shifting diets and emerging technologies challenge human well being and pose ever increasing demand for resources generated by the Biosphere This Research Topic concentrates on the various ways urbanization can promote individual well being mental physical and social health as well as ecological health a healthy Biosphere What kind of affordances for human health promotion can urbanization include What kinds of affordances for a psychological connection with nature can urbanization include What kinds of nudges for pro environmental behavior and consumption decreasing detrimental consumption behaviors can be actively designed in urban settings The Research Topic at hand uses a transactional approach where an affordance can be understood as a non deterministic in situ precondition for a human activity enabled by relations between abilities of an individual with features of an environment We encourage a broad definition of the concept of affordances where the environment must not be restricted to the material biophysical environment alone but also could be combined with social immaterial features We see that the transactional approach of this Research Topic posits that meaning arises in relations between humans and their environment that it will be equally applicable to natural and designed environments and that it doesn't regard dichotomies like city contra nature or social contra ecological Hence this Research Topic is interested in if the transactional approach can be used as a conceptual tool not only for promotion of mental physical and social health in cities but simultaneously for unraveling relations at the micro scale in cities which can be used for solutions that also promote a healthy Biosphere Constraints to Connecting Children With Nature? U.S. Department of the Interior, 2014-02-19 The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service FWS names connecting people with nature as one of its top six priorities in the online Service

Employee Pocket Guide U S Fish and Wildlife Service 2010 The National Conservation Training Center NCTC took the initiative to identify issues that impede greater progress in addressing the constraints to connecting children with nature The Division of Education Outreach DEO at NCTC formed a working relation with the Policy Analysis and Science Assistance PASA branch of the U S Geological Survey USGS to conduct a study on these issues To meet the objectives of the study a survey of a sample of FWS employees was conducted This report includes the description of how the survey was developed and administered how the data were analyzed and a discussion of the survey results

Connecting Children to Nature in a Montessori Primary Environment Maureen Harrington Russell,2014 Children are inherently connected to nature and fascinated by living things there is a significant body of research discussing the benefits of children interacting with nature on a regular basis Due to a variety of factors including increased academic pressures in schools overscheduling of extracurricular activities increased reliance on technology for entertainment and fear of children being left alone outdoors children are spending more time indoors than ever before in our history Connection to nature and inspiring wonder are an integral part of the Montessori Philosophy and Method The Montessori Method also stresses that immersion in nature is imperative for proper physical and psychological development In Montessori classrooms there is an intrinsic connection between nature and many of the primary materials In an action research project with a class of 39 children ages 4 6 a Montessori guide studied ways to integrate nature exploration via a Montessori primary curriculum inside and outside of the classroom The guide incorporated daily outdoor exploration in or around the woods seasonal nature related activities access to Montessori botany and zoology and materials live insect and small animal observation opportunities daily read alouds related to nature and gardening in a greenhouse Data was collected through two parent surveys children s nature journals photos of the children interacting with nature inside and outside and anecdotal records The research showed that by providing regular access to the outdoors along with multiple opportunities inside the classroom to explore nature and nature related materials the children became more connected with nature For the future the research suggests that increasing children s interactions with nature will influence environmentally responsible lifestyles and support children s development as young naturalists

Children, Nature and Cities Claire Freeman,Yolanda van Heezik,2018-06-14 That children need nature for health and well being is widely accepted but what type of nature Specifically what type of nature is not only necessary but realistically available in the complex and rapidly changing worlds that children currently live in This book examines child nature definitions through two related concepts the need for connecting to nature and the processes by which opportunities for such contact can be enhanced It analyses the available nature from a scientific perspective of habitats species and environments together with the role of planning to identify how children in cities can and do connect with nature This book challenges the notion of a universal child and childhood by recognizing children s diverse life worlds and experiences which guide them into different and complex ways of interacting with the natural world Unfortunately not all children have the freedom to access the nature that is present in the cities where they live This book addresses the challenge of designing biodiverse cities in which nature is readily accessible to children The Constraints of Connecting Children with Nature--A Research Literature Review
