Cluster Analysis Quantitative Applications In The Social Sciences:

Cluster Analysis Mark S. Aldenderfer, Roger K. Blashfield, 1984-11-01 Although clustering the classifying of objects into meaningful sets is an important procedure cluster analysis as a multivariate statistical procedure is poorly understood This volume is an introduction to cluster analysis for professionals as well as advanced undergraduate and graduate students with little or no background in the subject Reaching across disciplines Aldenderfer and Blashfield pull together the newest information on cluster analysis providing the reader with a pragmatic guide to its current uses statistical techniques validation methods and compatible software programs A Research Primer for the Social and Behavioral Sciences Miriam Schapiro Grosof, Hyman Sardy, 2014-05-10 A Research Primer for the Social and Behavioral Sciences provides an introductory but comprehensive overview of the research process that primarily concerns human subjects This book discusses the methods of acquiring knowledge importance of a well chosen problem review of the literature and relationship between theory building and hypothesis testing The common sources of invalidity in practice non experimental research types Stevens classification of scales and estimation based on probabilistic sampling are also elaborated This text likewise covers the role of computer in research techniques for analysis of data univariate and bivariate statistics and assumptions underlying analysis of variance Other topics include the canonical correlation analysis non parametric analysis of variance deterministic problem analysis techniques and common errors in presentation of findings This publication is intended for novice investigators in the broad category of social and behavioral sciences Translational and Experimental Clinical Research Daniel P. Schuster, William J. Powers (MD.), 2005 This volume is a comprehensive textbook for investigators entering the rapidly growing field of translational and experimental clinical research The book offers detailed guidelines for designing and conducting a study and analyzing and reporting results and discusses key ethical and regulatory issues Chapters address specific types of studies such as clinical experiments in small numbers of patients pharmacokinetics and pharmacodynamics and gene therapy and pharmacogenomic studies A major section describes modern techniques of translational clinical research including gene expression identifying mutations and polymorphisms cloning transcriptional profiling proteomics cell and tissue imaging tissue banking evaluating substrate metabolism and in vivo imaging Typologies and Taxonomies Kenneth D. Bailey, 1994-06-13 How do we group different subjects on a variety of variables Should we use a classification procedure in which only the concepts are classified typology one in which only empirical entities are classified taxonomy or some combination of both In this clearly written book Bailey addresses these questions and shows how classification methods can be used to improve research Beginning with an exploration of the advantages and disadvantages of classification procedures including those typologies that can be constructed without the use of a computer the book covers such topics as clustering procedures including agglomerative and divisive methods the relationship among various classification techniques including the relationship of monothetic qualitative typologies to polythetic quantitative taxonomies a comparison of clustering methods and how these methods compare with related statistical techniques such as factor analysis multidimensional scaling and systems analysis and lists classification resources This volume also discusses software packages for use in clustering techniques A Companion to Rock Art Jo McDonald, Peter Veth, 2012-09-04 This unique guide provides an artistic and archaeological journey deep into human history exploring the petroglyphic and pictographic forms of rock art produced by the earliest humans to contemporary peoples around the world Summarizes the diversity of views on ancient rock art from leading international scholars Includes new discoveries and research illustrated with over 160 images including 30 color plates from major rock art sites around the world Examines key work of noted authorities e g Lewis Williams Conkey Whitley and Clottes and outlines new directions for rock art research Is broadly international in scope identifying rock art from North and South America Australia the Pacific Africa India Siberia and Europe Represents new approaches in the archaeological study of rock art exploring issues that include gender shamanism landscape identity indigeneity heritage and tourism as well as technological and methodological advances in rock art analyses Handbook of Research Methods in Public Administration Sondra Brandler, Camille P. Roman, 2007-11-14 Describing new techniques and novel applications Handbook of Research Methods in Public Administration Second Edition demonstrates the use of tools designed to meet the increased complexity of problems in government and non profit organizations with ever more rigorous and systematic research It presents detailed information on conceptual The Myth of the North American City Michael Goldberg, John Mercer, 2011-11-01 The continuing tendency to continentalize Canadian issues has been particularly marked in the area of urban studies where United States based research findings methodologies and attitudes have held sway In this book Goldberg and Mercer demonstrate that the label North American City as widely used is inappropriate and misleading in discussion of the distinctive Canadian urban environment Examining such elements of the cultural context as mass values social and demographic structures the economy and political institutions they reveal salient differences between Canada and the United States One of the most important of the many contextual differences is the strong collective sense in Canada which accepts more public intervention in social and economic matters in contrast to the American commitment to individualism Canadians consequently expect a livable central city which is compact and well served by public transit and which has a fiscally sound local government To demonstrate these issues the discussion includes a detailed cross national empirical analysis of over 300 North American metropolitan areas along some three dozen dimensions including density transportation household change and structure income and fiscal disparities and economic structure Since much urban planning in Canada is based upon the continentalist assumption this volume should generate a reassessment of policy and encourage the development of a research base to suit the distinctiveness of the Canadian experience With growing pressures to take a North American view of Canadian policies it is vitally important that the differences delineated in this book are understood not just for their urban policy implications but for broader purposes as well Cluster Analysis Mark S.

Aldenderfer, Roger K. Blashfield, 1984-11 Although clustering the classification of objects into meaningful sets is an important procedure in the social sciences today cluster analysis as a multivariate statistical procedure is poorly understood by many social scientists This volume is an introduction to cluster analysis for social scientists and students Statistical Concepts Richard G. Lomax, 1998 Statistical Concepts 3 e consists of the last 8 chapters of Richard Lomax's best selling text An Introduction to Statistical Concepts 2 e Designed for a second course in statistics Lomax's comprehensive and flexible coverage allows instructors to pick and choose those topics most appropriate for their course It includes topics not found in competing texts such as the non parametric and modern alternative procedures and advanced analysis of variance ANOVA and regression models Its intuitive approach helps students more easily understand the concepts and interpret software results Throughout the text the author demonstrates how many statistical concepts relate to one another Only the most crucial equations are included The new edition features SPSS sections throughout with input output and APA style write ups using the book's dataset a CD with every example and problem dataset used in the text in SPSS format more information on confidence intervals effect size measures power and regression models a revised sequence of the regression and ANOVA chapters for enhanced conceptual flow de emphasized computations to provide more discussion of concepts and software more problems with more realistic data and a greater emphasis on interpretation an Instructor's Resource CD with all of the solutions to the problems and other teaching aids Statistical Concepts 3 e covers a number of ANOVA and regression models one factor multiple comparison factorial ANCOVA random and mixed effect hierarchical and randomized blocks and simple and multiple regression Realistic examples from education and the behavioral sciences illustrate the concepts Each example includes an examination of the various procedures and necessary assumptions tips on developing an APA style write up and sample SPSS output Useful tables of assumptions and the effects of their violation are included along with how to test assumptions in SPSS Each chapter concludes with conceptual and computational problems about a third of which are new to this edition Answers to the odd numbered problems are provided Intended for the second or intermediate course in statistics taught in education and or behavioral science departments usually found at the master's or doctoral level and occasionally at the undergraduate level A prerequisite of descriptive statistics through t tests is assumed Proceedings of the Sawtooth Software Conference, 1999 A London Bibliography of the Social Sciences, 1931 Vols 1 4 include material to June 1 1929 Monographic Series Library of Congress, Land Rites and Wrongs Lincoln Institute of Land Policy, University Consortium for Research on North America, Harvard University. Extension Strategy for British Columbia Shawn Morford, Chris Hollstedt, 2007 Rapid and significant changes in British Columbia are greatly affecting the province's forest sector and are leading to an increased demand for reliable science based information To help guide forestry extension programming in the province over the next 5 years FORREX Forest Research Extension Partnership FORREX staff in partnership with the Forest Investment Account Forest Science Program conducted a survey of clients partners and contacts This web based survey was designed to 1 identify perceptions regarding the need for forestry extension in British Columbia 2 characterize information gaps that exist within the forest sector 3 identify barriers to the incorporation of new information 4 evaluate information sources and forestry extension services and 5 seek recommendations regarding the future of forestry extension In August 2005 a 26 question survey was e mailed to 1368 potential respondents who were selected from the forrex client database Using a stratified random sampling method respondents were chosen from nine groups academia consultants federal government provincial government First Nations government major licensees municipal government non government organizations and other A response rate of 22% was achieved with this survey instrument the calculated maximum error was 5.4% at a 95% confidence level All groups agreed that the need for extension services is greater now than it has been in the past 10 years The greatest perceived barriers to incorporating science into management and decision making were the lack of formal organizational processes the profit focus of land managers and the lack of time and funding to attend extension events A majority indicated that extension should be paid by some ratio of public funds and cost recovery although this ratio was not agreed upon The operational community indicated a preference for accessible concise information delivered in a timely fashion that does not require significant investments of time to absorb and incorporate Overall this survey showed that there is no one size fits all approach for forestry extension services A goal of future extension could best be described in the succinct words of one respondent Keep it relevant and bring the newfound information to the user quickly
