For the present, we are continuing to develop our business in the United States, and we are also looking at opportunities in other countries, such as Canada, Australia, and the United Kingdom, where we have had positive experience in the past.

This generates your class `Group` and module which are always initialized with the `Group` object and `None` for `group` and `None` for `group_id`. You can then use `Group` as a regular class and `Group.get_group_id` function to determine which group they are in the case of those in the same `Group` (or `None` if none of them are in the same `Group`).
