Chipping Logging Residues at Roadside Luc Desrochers,Canada Centre for Mineral and Energy Technology. Efficiency and Alternative Energy Technology Branch,Dave Puttock,1994 The energy residue of forest residues such as unmerchantable tops and limbs left on site following conventional timber harvesting operations is widely recognized Development in full tree harvesting and the use of single stem delimiters now offer opportunities for recovering logging residues directly at roadside This study evaluated the efficiency and economics of chipping logging residues at roadside using mobile chipper forwarders and trailer mounted chippers and investigated the economics of transporting the energy chips to the end users facilities The report presents case studies of three biomass chipping operations For each operation a description of the equipment and working techniques used characteristics of the study area and debris and results of a short term evaluation are presented A transportation model is used to estimate transportation cost and a break even price analysis is provided to estimate the cost of chips delivered at the end user facility for varying transportation distances    Direct Support and General Support
