Armed conflicts continue to wreak havoc on children and families around the world with profound effects. In 2017, 420 million children, nearly one in five, were living in conflict-affected areas, an increase of 30 million from the previous year. The recent surge in war-induced migration, referred to as a global refugee crisis, has made migration a highly politicized issue with refugee populations and host countries facing unique challenges. We know from research related to asylum-seeking families that it is vital to think about children and families in relation to what it means to stay together, what it means for parents to be separated from their children, and the kinds of everyday tensions that emerge in living in dangerous, insecure, and precarious circumstances. In Global Child, the authors draw on what they have learned through their collaborative undertakings and highlight the unique features of participatory, arts-based, and socio-ecological approaches to studying war-affected children and families, demonstrating the collective strength as well as the limitations and ethical implications of such research. Building on work across the Global South and the Global North, this book aims to deepen an understanding of their tri-pillared approach and the potential of this methodology for contributing to improved practices in working with war-affected children and their families. The Continuum Encyclopedia of Children's Literature Bernice E. Cullinan, Diane Goetz Person, 2005-01-01

Over the last decades, Media Education has gradually obtained an educational status in many countries throughout the world, although few countries have actually incorporated this subject in their formal school curricula. Where Media Education is taught today, it is principally carried out using a relaxed, pluralistic, and a cross or multidisciplinary approach. This book sets out to explore this new approach to the subject via chapters that are representative of ongoing work by leading Media Education researchers in nine different countries and from all five continents Media Education is continually evolving and the individual chapters indicate that the passion for the subject is global while the actual translations of practices and policies are very much local The book expands the debate about Media Education beyond the traditions and interests of one part of the world to encompass the needs of the rest An Introduction to the World of Children's Books Margaret Richardson Marshall,1988 Offers a brief look at the history of children s literature and discusses important examples The Literary World ,1900 Children's Library Yearbook ,1930 Children's Library Yearbooks American Library Association.
