

Cell Communication

1. Review your prior assignment, and list four elements of the signal transduction system, from memory.

2. After you draw out the entire signal-transduction signalling pathway, the water pipe breaks all the molecules (enzymes, substrates, identity-labels) and transport molecules have to be re-synthesised. What is the final product in this case?

3. Study Figure 15.20, and list four molecules, intermediates, or enzymes and a second molecule and a change in its concentration. What is the major difference between this transduction in a normal cell compared to that in the diagram?

4. 2016 science literature is full of cancer-related papers. What is cancer? Cancer is actually how a protein.

5. A cancerous receptor, mutated protein kinase, activates the transcription of the cancer-related gene. What does this suggest? What does this tell you about the role of the protein?

6. How is cancer a transcriptional factor? It happens in the nucleus. The transcription factor activates the transcription of a specific gene. The resulting mRNA is then translated into a protein that promotes the growth of the cell.

7. Study the 2016. What are the two main categories of cancer? What are the two main types of cancer? The two main types of cancer are solid tumours and haematological malignancies. Solid tumours are made up of cells that have grown out of control, while haematological malignancies are made up of cells that have grown out of control.
