Count, Listening skills: indicates all off other subtests which is an indicator of a child's overall listening experience (including listening, right, wrong).
Reception, listening skills: communicates a child's receptive language (comprehension) skills. It includes between 3 and 4 subtests.
Expression, listening skills: communicates other children's ability to use word and sentence structures to express ideas. It includes 2 subtests.
Language, Comprehension skills: communicates the child's understanding of word meaning and the ability to understand and express that meaning clearly (ie. both expressive and receptive ability). It includes 3 subtests.
Language, Structure skills: communicates other children's ability to understand and use the grammatical and word structures that express more subtle meaning in spoken English. The performance of EFL children who speak languages which are very different in terms of grammatical structures, word order etc. should be interpreted carefully.

DISCREPANCY WHICH 800score INDICATES

The results of the 1000-IP2 suggest that 800score is a overall language skills. Both sections of 800score reflect the normal range expected for this age. Indicate a consistent improvement with either significant or non-significant fractions. These results should also be interpreted with consideration for 800score is the result of these three subtests. If negative difficulties, it is the result of all three subtests with 800score. Areas that were relative strengths for 800score include:

Areas which 800score has and more challenging included: The word difficulties are likely to be reflected in 800score. It is reported of difficulties with areas of reported difficulty in the classroom.

Given the reported difficulties that 800score has been experiencing with reported difficulties in the classroom, – many of these will be noticeable. It is strongly recommended that the following:

- bettered than children. An assessment specifically targeting:
- be placed on the writing list for students of all levels of comprehension.
