Ryan,Nikolina Skandali,2016-10-11 Preferential reward processing is the hallmark of addiction where salient cues become overvalued and trigger compulsion In depression rewards appear to lose their incentive properties or become devalued In the context of schizophrenia aberrations in neural reward signalling are thought to contribute to the overvaluation of irrelevant stimuli on the one hand and the onset of negative symptoms on the other Accordingly reward processing has emerged as a key variable in contemporary evidence based diagnostic frameworks such as the Research Domain Criteria launched by the United States National Institute of Mental Health Delineation of the underlying mechanisms of aberrant or blunted reward processing can be of trans diagnostic importance across several neuropsychiatric disorders Reward processing can become automatic thus raising the question of cognitive control a core theme of this Topic which aims at justifying the necessity of reward processing as a potential therapeutic target in clinical settings Empirical and theoretical contributions on the following themes were expected to Explore new avenues of research by investigating the processing of rewards at the cognitive behavioral motivational neural systems and individual difference levels A developmental focus is promising in this regard probing the core processes that shape reward processing and thus subsequent liability to motivational and affective disorders Develop and refine conceptual models of reward processing from computational neuroscience Promote greater
