Civitas/What is City? Theresa Genovese, Linda Eastley, Deanna Snyder, 1998 What constitutes a city How does human settlement in a specific site create a civilization Civitas the latest issue of the Harvard Architectural Review presents a series of provocative responses to these questions Architects critics educators and planners investigate the conflict between contemporary constructs of human settlement and more traditional definitions of cities Through a combination of projects and theoretical essays Civitas aims to provide a more diverse understanding of the nature of urbanism and community The conception of community as an orderly or focused environment in the landscape is an expression predominantly derived from the Western medieval city and perception This idea has been copied transformed and even romanticized but today its structure is no longer the image that dominates the landscape from the introduction to Civitas Making the Metropolitan Landscape Jacqueline Tatom, Jennifer Stauber, 2009-05-07 The American landscape is an extremely complex terrain born from a history of collective and individual experiences These created environments which all may be called metropolitan landscapes constantly challenge students and professionals in the fields of architecture design and planning to consider new ways of making lively public places This book brings together varied voices in urban design theory and practice to explore new ways of understanding place and our position in it Facilitating Watershed Management Robert L.

France, 2005 Facilitating Watershed Management brings together myriad distinctive voices to create an experiential learning process drawn from the most important innovators in the field Presenting an introduction to the diversity of tools sociological pedagogical phenomenological needed to implement watershed management in the real world trenches the book helps move students and practitioners from being knowledgeable stewards of watersheds to becoming wise managers of watersheds

The City Makers of Nairobi Anders Eise, Kristin Eise, 2020-07-21 The City Makers of Nairobi re examines the history of the urban development of Nairobi in the colonial period Although Nairobi was a colonial construct with lasting negative repercussions the African population's impact on its history and development is often overlooked This book shows how Africans took an active part in making use of the city and creating it and how they were far from being subjects in the development of a European colonial city This re interpretation of Nairobi's history suggests that the post colonial city is the result of more than unjust and segregative colonial planning Merging historical documentation with extensive contemporary urban theory this book provides in depth knowledge of the key historical roles played by locals in the development of their city It argues that the idea of agency a popular inroad to urban development today is not a current phenomenon but one that has always existed with its many social spatial and physical ramifications This is an ideal read for upper level undergraduate and graduate students studying the history of urban development and theories providing an in depth case study for reference The City Makers of Nairobi broaches interdisciplinary themes important to urban planners social scientists historians and those working with popular settlements in cities across the world Urbicide Fernando Carrión Mena, Paulina Cepeda

Pico,2023-03-23 This book uses the reflection of academics specialized in the urban area of Latin America Europe and the United States to initiate a comparative debate of the different dynamics in which Urbicidio expresses itself The field or focal point of analysis that this publication approaches is the city but under a new critical perspective of inverse methodology to that has been traditional used It is about understanding the structural causes of self destruction to finally thinking better and then going from pessimism to optimism It is a deep look at the city from an unconventional entrance because it is about knowing and analyzing what the city loses by the action deployed by own urbanites both in the field of its production and in the field of its consumption This suppose that the city does not have an ascending linear sequential evolution in its development but neither in each of its parts in the improvement process showing the face that commonly not seen but others live The category used for this purpose is that of Urbicidio or the death of the city which contributes theoretically and methodologically to the knowledge of the city as well as to the design of urban policies that neutralize it In addition it is worth mentioning that the book has an inclusive view of the authors For this reason gender parity territorial representation and the presence of age groups have been sought

Emerging Urbanity Richard Marshall,2013-09-05 Discussions on the global economy focus on the hyper mobility of capital the possibility of instantaneous transmission of information and money around the globe the centrality of information outputs to our economic systems and emphasise the neutralisation of geography and of places What is ignored however is that even the most advanced information industries need a material infrastructure of buildings and work processes and considerable agglomeration in order to operate in global markets Further the globalisation of economic activity has brought with it not only a vast dispersal of offices and factories but also a growing importance of central functions to manage and coordinate such worldwide networks of activities The development of global urban projects is one manifestation of this move towards centrality in urban situations These large scale urban projects are the result of governments seeking competitive advantage in the global economy They are critical components of a nation s global infrastructure In the booming economies of the Asia Pacific Rim prior to the Asian Economic Crisis these urban developments were seen as key components of national economic policies In their making they require a conscious effort to arrange material infrastructure and reinforce that there is a role for urban design in this making Emerging Urbanity is an exploration of this role in nine global urban projects in the Asia Pacific Rim
