Class 10 Golden English Guide 2015:

The English Professor Margaret R. O'Leary/Dennis S. O'Leary, 2016-02-04 Across the span of more than forty years Raphael Dorman O'Leary a professor of English rhetoric and English literature taught his students at the University of Kansas to think straight to put sinew into their sentences and to embrace the magnificent literary treasures of their mother tongue. The English Professor by authors Margaret R O'Leary and Dennis S O'Leary offers a narrative of the life work and times of a revered Midwestern university English teacher. This memoir narrates how the professor born in 1866 was raised on a Kansas farm in the post bellum era. Like his father before him he was committed to a life of learning and teaching. His colleagues knew him for his unpretentious exterior honesty and integrity and his flashing anger at cheapness vulgarity pretense and above all charlatanism. When Professor O'Leary died after a short illness in 1936 his personal effects passed through two generations to his grandson Dennis S O'Leary who with his wife Margaret discovered his papers while restoring a family house. The trove of material served as the core resource for the compilation of The English Professor. It provides insights into the histories of Kansas and the University of Kansas and of Harvard University as well as perspectives on higher education including the teaching of English rhetoric language journalism and oratory in the United States.

Between Generations Victoria Ford Smith, 2017-08-07 Winner of the Children's Literature Association's 2019 Book Award. Between Generations is a multidisciplinary volume that reframes children as powerful forces in the production of their own literature and culture by uncovering a tradition of creative collaborative partnerships between adults and children in nineteenth and early twentieth century England. The intergenerational collaborations documented here provide the foundations for some of the most popular Victorian literature for children from Margaret Gatty's Aunt Judy's Tales to Robert Louis Stevenson's Treasure Island. Examining the publication histories of both canonical and lesser known Golden Age texts reveals that children collaborated with adult authors as active listeners coauthors critics illustrators and even small scale publishers. These literary collaborations were part of a growing interest in child agency evident in cultural social and scientific discourses of the time. Between Generations puts these creative partnerships in conversation with collaborations in other fields including child study educational policy library history and toy culture. Taken together these collaborations illuminate how Victorians used new critical approaches to childhood to theorize young people as viable social actors. Smith's work not only recognizes Victorian children as literary collaborators but also interrogates how those creative partnerships reflect and influence adult child relationships in the world beyond books. Between Generations breaks the critical impasse that understands children's literature and children themselves as products of adult desire and revises common constructions of childhood that frequently and often errantly resign the young to passivity or powerlessness.

The book is informed by a number of different critical approaches to race and discourse and the discussions contained in the chapters offer one way of exploring how the ELT profession can be understood from such perspectives. Observations made are based on the understanding that racism should not be viewed as individual acts of discrimination but rather as a system of social structures. While the book is principally concerned with language teaching and learning in South Korea the findings are situated in a wider discussion of race and ethnicity in the global ELT profession. The book makes the following argument: White normativity is an ideological commitment and a form of racialized discourse that comes from the social actions of those involved in the ELT profession. This normative model or ideal standard constructs a system of racial discrimination that is founded on White privilege, saviorism and neoliberalism. Drawing on a wide range of data sources this book is a must-read for anyone interested in critically examining ELT. Stern's Guide to the Cruise Vacation: 2017 Edition Steven B.
