In Children's Classics in Dramatic Form A Reader for the Fourth Grade Augusta Stevenson presents a carefully curated selection of classic tales transformed into engaging dramatic scripts. This anthology not only enriches children's literary experiences but also encourages expressive reading and performance. The book's literary style is characterized by accessible language and vivid characterization, making timeless stories such as The Velveteen Rabbit and Peter Pan accessible to young audiences while maintaining their original charm. The dramatic form emphasizes dialogue and action, promoting active participation and critical engagement with the text, thus situating the book within a broader educational context aiming to enhance literacy through dramatization.

Augusta Stevenson, an influential figure in children's literature, was committed to the idea that literature should be both educational and entertaining. Her background in education and her passion for storytelling inspired her to adapt these beloved classics for children. Stevenson believed that by acting out these stories, children could deepen their understanding of narrative structures, themes, and character development, fostering a lifelong love of reading and theater.

This book is highly recommended for educators and parents seeking to inspire creativity and a love for literature in young learners. By providing children with the opportunity to become active interpreters of literary art, Stevenson's work serves as a vital resource in any fourth-grade classroom, promoting both literacy and collaborative learning.

In this enriched edition, we have carefully created added value for your reading experience. Hand-picked Memorable Quotes shine a spotlight on moments of literary brilliance. Interactive footnotes clarify unusual references, historical allusions, and archaic phrases for an effortless, more informed read.

Children's Classics in Dramatic Form - Book One Augusta Stevenson, 2016-12-18 From the FOREWORD This series of books aims to serve three distinct purposes first to arouse a greater interest in oral reading second to develop an expressive voice sadly lacking in the speech of most Americans and third to give freedom and grace in the bodily attitudes and movements which are involved in reading and speaking The stories given are for the most part adaptations of favorite tales from the folklore of many countries from historical tradition and from standard literature Children are dramatic by nature They are for the time the kings the fairies and the heroes that they picture in their imaginations They are these characters with such abandon and with such intense pleasure that the onlooker must believe that nature intended that they should give play to this dramatic instinct not so much formally with all the trappings of the man made stage but spontaneously and naturally as they talk and read If this expressive instinct can be utilized in the teaching of reading we shall be able both to add greatly to the child's enjoyment and to improve the quality of his oral reading In these days when so many books are hastily read in school there is a tendency to sacrifice expression to the mechanics and interpretation of reading Those acquainted with school work know too well the resulting monotonous indistinct speech and the self-conscious listless attitude which characterize so much of the reading of pupils in grades above the third It is believed that these readers will aid in overcoming these serious faults in reading which all teachers and parents deplore The dramatic appeal of the stories will cause the child to lose himself in the character he is impersonating and read with a naturalness and expressiveness unknown to him before and this improvement will be evident in all his oral reading and even in his speech

Children's Classics in Dramatic Form, Vol. 3 (Classic Reprint) Augusta Stevenson, 2015-07-19 Excerpt from Children's Classics in Dramatic Form Vol 3 The best results will usually be obtained by using these stories in the fourth grade In some schools however the stories in the first part of the book may profitably be used in the third grade The author has been led to believe from her own experience and from her conversation with many other teachers that there is a pronounced call for this kind of book She therefore hopes that in the preparation of this book she may have been of service to the teachers and children who may be led to use it About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such
