Controversies In The Management Of Liver Metastases

David Marc Gershenson

Controversies In The Management Of Liver Metastases:

Controversies in the Management of Liver Metastases Thomas M. van Gulik, 2009 While considerable progress has been made in both surgical treatment of liver metastases and neoadjuvant or postoperative chemotherapy decision making has become more complex. The definition of accurate measures is very difficult because there exists no consensus regarding pre or postoperative predictors of survival in patients undergoing liver resection. Even though PET is well established in the diagnosis of colorectal cancer and its metastases it is unclear whether a combination of imaging modalities will be of additional value. Neoadjuvant strategies are very efficient in downsizing metastasis but they at the same time reduce functional liver reserve due to chemotherapy induced liver injury. The advantages and disadvantages of the liver first approach are likewise discussed as are controversial issues in the use of portal vein embolization and radiofrequency ablation versus resection. Even though the main focus of this publication is on colorectal liver metastases other primary cancers also receive some attention. Papers on resection of liver metastases combined with primary cancers conclude the discussions. This collection of papers provides valuable information on the many issues connected with the management of liver metastases both colorectal and non colorectal. Surgeons confronted with the question as to the best treatment strategy will find it a very helpful aid in their decision process.

Controversies in Hepatology Donald Jensen, 2011 The field of hepatology is full of controversies and clinical dilemmas. Each day gastroenterologists and hepatologists are faced with the challenge of making the best evidence based decision in challenging cases that do not readily lend themselves to an easy answer even with today's available medical literature. Controversies in Hepatology: The Experts Analyze Both Sides is based on the principle of an academic debate. Dr. Donald Jensen is joined by 50 colleagues who present evidence based arguments for and against 17 key controversial areas in hepatology. Each point counterpoint is then followed up by a summarization of key points by a leading expert in that topic area. Some Chapter Topics Include: Should living donor liver transplantation be considered in adult acute liver failure? Should hepatitis C be treated in patients with chronic kidney disease prior to kidney transplant? Resect or observe asymptomatic hepatic adenoma? Strictly adhere to the 6 month rule for recent history of alcohol abuse in potential liver transplant candidates? Autoimmune hepatitis maintenance therapy for all patients or stop treatment after histologic remission? With concise clinical information to reinforce the point counterpoint text, Controversies in Hepatology: The Experts Analyze Both Sides will become the go to
