Phonics Screening Check

What is phonics?

Phonics is the study of the sounds of words and how they are written. It is the study of the relationship between the sounds of words and the letters that represent them.

Phonics is an important part of learning to read and write. It helps children to understand how words are made and how they are written. This helps them to learn to read and write more easily.

How is phonics taught?

Phonics is taught in a variety of ways. Some children learn to read by sounding out words. Others learn to read by looking at the letters and trying to guess the word. Some children learn to read by a combination of these methods.

Phonics is an important part of learning to read and write. It helps children to understand how words are made and how they are written. This helps them to learn to read and write more easily.

What is the phonics screening check?

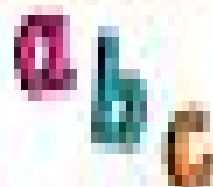

The phonics screening check is a test that is given to children in Year One. It is designed to check whether children have the basic phonics skills that they need to be able to read and write.

What does the check involve?

The check involves children reading a list of words that they have not heard before. They are asked to read the words out loud. The teacher will listen to their reading and mark their progress.

What is the purpose of the check?

The purpose of the check is to identify children who may have difficulties with phonics. This allows teachers to provide extra support to these children so that they can learn to read and write more easily.
