

DOC 14: Developments and Revelations 1945-1979

Historical Context

Following World War II, the post-war reconstruction efforts in Japan, including the development of a new constitution, were supervised by the United States and the United Kingdom. In a series of secret meetings, the two nations began to discuss the future of Japan, including the possibility of a new constitution. The United States and the United Kingdom agreed to a joint declaration of intent to develop a new constitution for Japan, which was signed in 1946. This declaration was the first step in the process of developing a new constitution for Japan, which was completed in 1947.
